Two Cars Damaged In Port Ewen Crash

A Chevrolet sedan driven by T. R. Wilson of Kingston was struck by a truck driven by Martin Stein of New York city on Route 9-W at Port Ewen Wednesday evening, both cars being damaged so that it was found necessary to tow them to a garage.

Wilson was accompanied by his wife and four year old daughter, Elizabeth, the latter being injured about the nose as a result of the collision. There were no other injuries reported.

According to the story told Sergeant Lockhart Wilson had backed out of the entrance to the cemetery at Port Ewen and started for Kingston when he was struck by the truck driven by Stein, who was on his way to Hunter, where his people conduct the Arlington Hotel. After striking the Chevrolet, Stein's car continued for some distance and finally struck the guard fence at the left of the road, knocking down several of the concrete posts.

News of Today In Kingston

Summer school is drawing to a close. The boys and girls will have a few weeks to draw a breath, get a little recreation and then back to the books again. These students must either love school or they just have a purpose, most likely a purpose.

The death of Vince Hart has been a shock to the sport's world in general. Besides being a fine man in the ring, Vince played baseball and was known through the section.

He was liked by all his teammates and the public still remembers the gallant figure that accepted defeat and triumph with a smile. In the going of Vince, athletics lost a good athlete and the community a good citizen.

No Bribe Necessary For Home Relief

Some people who have seen men going to the home relief office with packages under their arms are circulating stories to the effect that in order to receive home relief it is necessary to bribe the members of the office force at the home relief office on the third floor of the city hall.

As usual the Busy Street Liar is circulating the story to the best of his or her ability, and as usual the stories are without foundation.

The packages that the men carry under their coats are the license plates for their cars which they have to turn in before receiving aid from the city. Many men, who have never sought home relief before, but who are without work or funds to buy food for their families, try to disguise the fact that they are turning in the license plates of their cars by carrying the plates tucked under their coats.

There is not a family in the city receiving home relief who has not been thoroughly investigated by the investigators in the employ of the Board of Public Works.

Striking Farmers Picket Highways

Sioux City, Ia., Aug. 15 (AP)—The "battle of the highway," resulting from strikes by farmers for higher prices, was being fought on three fronts today—Iowa, Nebraska, and South Dakota.

Extending their blockade of Iowa and South Dakota highways into Dakota county, Nebraska, picketing farmers, asserting determination to withhold produce from the market until prices go higher, hemmed in Sioux City, on all sides, and the situation seemed serious enough to Sheriff Hugh Slocum at Stevens, S. D., to ask the state sheriff for aid.

Slocum decided to appeal after about 100 farmers, picketing a highway at Stevens, forced him and his deputies to stop escorting a fleet of five trucks to Sioux City.

The sheriff fired a shot in the air and the farmers took away their weapon. It was the first shot fired anywhere in the area affected by the strikes, one of which is being waged by milk producers, and the other by farmers who have declared a 30-day holiday on selling all kinds of agricultural products.

Poultrymen Discuss Egg Auction Market

Over thirty poultrymen from all parts of Ulster county met at the court house, Wednesday night to discuss the possibility of developing an egg auction market for the central Hudson valley.

The meeting was opened by A. P. Kaplan of Accord, chairman for this county. J. C. Crissey of the Co-operative G. L. F. presented the possibilities and the advantages of such a market. A vote indicated that the group was unanimously in favor of developing the project.

A tri-county meeting, including Columbia, Dutchess and Ulster counties will be held at Rhinebeck, Friday night, to discuss the matter and formulate definite plans. The following committee was chosen to represent Ulster county at this meeting: A. P. Kaplan, Accord; Frank Black, Modern, John J. Miller, Kingston; Willis Myers, Saugerties; Claude Kieffer, Kingston; and Glenn A. Cummings of Napanoch. This committee will report any action taken to the Ulster county poultrymen at a later date.

Firemen Play Host To Industrial Home

The children of the Industrial Home were the guests of the Kingston Paid Firemen's Association at the annual outing and picnic which was held today at the Devil's Tombstone, a state camp site at the Hunter Notch.

The children were conveyed by automobile to the camp, leaving Kingston at 10:15 o'clock this morning. On arrival at the camp site they played games and worked up an appetite for the appetizing meal that was served.

It was planned to return home about 6 o'clock this evening.

MME. LUPESCU AGAIN TARGET FOR BULLET

Police Dog Saves Life of King Carol's Favorite.

Bucharest.—A German police dog saved the life of Madame Magda Lupescu when a Rumanian officer secretly entered her bedroom with the intention of killing her. Madame Lupescu was wounded in the arm, her chambermaid shot through the abdomen.

This was the second attempt upon the life of Madame Lupescu in her villa in Bucharest.

The beautiful Jewess, for whom King Carol was prepared to sacrifice his throne, was saved from certain assassination when her faithful police dog sunk his teeth in the arm of Colonel Taranu, former Rumanian military attaché in Paris.

Taranu dropped his pistol before he could fire the shot that was aimed at Madame Lupescu's heart. Colonel Taranu, together with four other Rumanian officers, was arrested.

The discovery that both attempts to kill Madame Lupescu were made by Colonel Taranu created a sensation in Bucharest.

His enmity toward Madame Lupescu is declared to be the result of his transfer from Paris, where he was Rumanian military attaché, to Focsani, a small Rumanian city. He believed Madame Lupescu to be responsible for it, and resolved to take revenge.

His first attempt to assassinate her took place last Easter but was unsuccessful. He was able to flee undisturbed.

More Countries Honor Memory of Washington

Washington.—In Warsaw it is "Aleja Jerzy Waszyngton"—in Rome it is "Viale Giorgio Washington"—in Bucharest it is "Perspective a Washington"—in Guatemala it is "Avenida Washington"—and in Berlin it is "Washington Platz."

All of which in good old United States means "Washington avenue, boulevard, square," or whatever else the people of these countries have named in honor of George Washington.

Official reports to the United States George Washington bicentennial commission reveal that, since the opening of the bicentennial celebration, fourteen countries have named fourteen streets and seven squares and parks in honor of the first President of the United States.

These figures do not include the streets, parks and squares named in George Washington's honor prior to the beginning of the bicentennial celebration, nor those which are contemplated before Thanksgiving day, the official closing day of the celebration.

The cities and countries which have chosen this means of observing the anniversary of the birth of George Washington are:

Sofia, Bulgaria; Prague, Czechoslovakia; Saigon, French Indo-China; Berlin, Dresden, and Hamburg, Germany; Guatemala city, Guatemala; Budapest and Sopron, Hungary; Rome and Florence, Italy; Riga and Jelgava, Latvia; Bergen, Norway; Cracow, Gdynia and Warsaw, Poland; Bucharest, Rumania; Pretoria, Union of South Africa; Belgrade, Ljubljana and Zagreb, Yugoslavia.

Red Lamp and Bell to Warn of Monoxide Gas

London.—A device for detecting the presence of carbon monoxide gas such as given off by an automobile exhaust has been placed on the British market.

The invention is enclosed in a box the size of a telephone battery. It has a window through which a red lamp glows when the poisonous gas is present. At the same time a bell rings.

This bell, presuming the apparatus is in a garage where a man is working, can be connected to any other part of the building and would act as an S O S.

It consists of a photo-electric cell, similar to that used in the invisible ray apparatus.

German Plane Has Speed of 1,000 Miles an Hour

Berlin.—A new type airplane designed to travel at terrific speed—possibly 1,000 miles an hour—through the rarefied atmosphere far above the earth has been virtually finished by the Junkers company of Germany.

The new plane for stratospheric operation is said to be equipped with a crude oil Junkers engine and a hermetically sealed pilot room. The wings have an unusually large area for support. Test flights have been made for some time by a famous German pilot.

King Pats Dog, Now He Is Sir William

Weymouth, England.—Emulating King James I, who knighted a lot of beef at Houghton Towers 300 years ago, giving "sirloin" the name by which it has been known ever since, King George has bestowed a knighthood "on a dog."

The animal was "Bill Bulldog," mascot of the battleship Nelson. The sailors dubbed the dog "Sir William Bulldog" after the king had patted the animal on his head. The incident occurred during King George's inspection of the home fleet.

VICTIM'S KINDNESS MAKES BOY BANDIT REPENT RASH DEED

Develops Outside Conscience When Man Splits Meager Roll With Him

Chicago—Richard Rollins, twenty years old, has been a wayfarer since he wandered away from home in Detroit in 1908. He never did a day's work in his life. Still, in the queer world of shifting men in which he exists, where meeting a dime is looked on as a stroke of good business, Rollins has developed an outside conscience.

The other day he turned bandit. It seemed to be a logical thing to do. He was hungrier than usual, he had found a rusty pistol in an ash can and the mooching was poor.

At Randolph street and the lake he found his victim: a quiet, gray-haired man sitting in an automobile. Rollins stepped in, sat beside him and displayed the pistol.

Victim Divides His Money. "It's a pickup," he said. "I don't like to do it, but I'm hungry."

"Sure," said the stranger cheerfully. "I can understand that. I'm broke and out of work myself, but I feel sorry for you. Suppose we split what I've got."

Rollins agreed that would do. The victim counted out $3.54 and gave the gunman—whose gun was too rusty to shoot and besides had no bullets—$1.77.

"Now," said Rollins, "I'll have to have your car. But you stand on the street and I'll only drive a block. Then you can come and get the car."

As the bandit drove away the man robbed waved from the sidewalk and said something in a pleasant tone.

Conscience Hurts Him. Rollins left the car as he promised and ducked into an alley. A little later he was sitting before a large beef stew in a restaurant. But his conscience rose up and choked him. He couldn't eat. He paid his bill and walked over to Wabash avenue and Adams street, where he handed his pistol to Traffic Policeman Richard Downs.

He told his story and asked to be locked up. Policeman Downs said he was sorry to do it, but took him to the detective bureau. There Rollins was held without booking. Perhaps he won't even be charged with the robbery.

"That man," asserted the prisoner, "won't complain about me. He said he wouldn't and I believed him. That's what made me feel so bad. That and what he said as I drove away."

"What did he say?" a policeman asked. Richard Rollins, bum, choked on his Adam's apple. "He said: 'Good-by and God bless you.'"

Flying Squirrels Have Electric Heat in Home

Clarksburg, W. Va.—A family of wild flying squirrels at Interstate, near here, has become so interested in conveniences of modern civilization that it has taken on one of them and now heats its home with electricity. John McCloud, West Penn station engineer, reported the unusual fact here.

The home of this up-to-date family of squirrels is a switchbox, high up on a trolley pole at Interstate substation. They moved in from trees of a nearby wood and show no inclination of returning to their former habitat. When McCloud opens the door of the box to change the switch he uses a long hook. When the door is opened, the squirrels scamper out and cling to the sides of the pole until the operation is completed. Sometimes they roll plane to earth and return.

The squirrels stay in the box, because the electrode there warms and keeps the temperature quite comfortable in cool weather.

Victim Talks Holdups Out of Getting Money

Ogden, Utah.—His conversational ability enabled Ensign Terry to keep his cash register intact during a robbery.

Two robbers entered Terry's service station and demanded money. Terry began to talk. His conversation interested the thieves and slowed up their robbery. Eventually prospective customers noticed Terry's plight and reported to police. The robbers escaped, but without money, thanks to Terry's tongue.

Rough Highway Removes Eraser From Boy's Ear

West Brooklyn, Ill.—A bumpy highway was as good as surgical skill in the case of Robert Boyle, nine. Robert had put an eraser into his ear, and his parents were unable to remove it.

They started to a nearby town to get the services of a doctor, but on the way their car jolted about so much that the eraser was loosened and dropped out of the boy's ear.

Helpful Burglars

Salem, Ohio.—Burglars proved real friends to Clarence Taylor.

Taylor owned a safe which had not been used for years, but the combination had jammed. While he pondered whether to spend the money to have it opened and repaired the burglars cracked it. It contained nothing.

Gold Ring in Potato

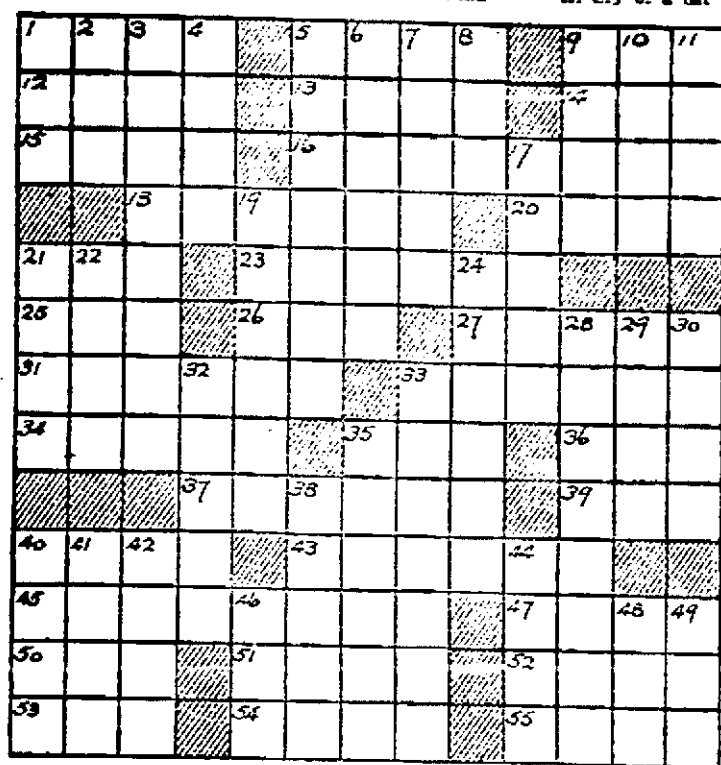

Toledo.—A potato yielded a gold ring to Clara Skelding, twenty-two years old, the other day. The ring was almost incased in the potato.

Lightning Rings Own Alarm

Novara, Italy (AP)—A bolt of lightning set fire to Giovanni Garneri's home, but also set the electric doorbell to ringing so violently that he was attracted to the scene in time to extinguish the flames. The bolt fused the wiring, completing the bell circuit.

Gem-Studded Bowl

In the Swedish National Museum in Stockholm there is a famous gem-studded bowl resting on a pedestal. It is said to be worth more than a quarter of a million dollars because of the jewels with which it is inlaid. The bowl dates back to the Eleventh century and is believed once to have contained the head of a martyred saint.

STALE GAS IS FEEBLE—FRESH GAS PACKS POWER

WHAT? Such a thing as "stale" gasoline? Absolutely. Think about it a minute and you'll see why.

Gasoline evaporates. The most volatile parts—important "easy starting" elements—slowly float off into thin air. A chemical change occurs, too. So that the longer gas is stored, the more important power elements it loses!—the feebler it gets.

Another thing. When gas is stored too long, sticky compounds form. Those sticky compounds foul your motor—may clog valves and carburetor. And stale gas knocks more, too—particularly on hills.

Those are the reasons why refiners have tried to stop the deterioration of gasoline. Those are the reasons why Gulf is pleased to announce a system that assures you of getting FRESH-MADE gasoline. Here's how...

Gulf makes the best gasoline that can be produced—and takes out certain complex elements which have been found to cause rapid deterioration. Hence, Gulf gas stays FRESH longer.

And Gulf has geared up its distribution system to rush this FRESH-MADE gas to you like some perishable food! We have placed huge refineries in many sections of the country—so that every Gulf filling station is close to a source of FRESH gasoline. The casualties on Sunday, as in Saturday's mishap, were limited to a number of cuts suffered by occupants of the moving car as a result of broken glass from the windshield. As traffic was heavy over the week-end, there was more or less congestion at the scene of the accidents until matters were straightened out by Trooper Daley and Deputy Sheriff Windrum.

CLASSIFIED SECT ATT BLERS

ENDS PASSION FOR LIMELIGHT BY WAY OF THE GAS ROUTE

Clark Who Paraded as Millionaire
Also Turns on Kitchen
Range Jets.

New York.—Dumb, self-indulgent, has claimed Rex. R. Fairbanks, who less than two years ago became a romantic and eligible "millionaire bachelor," although he had no millions and had a wife.

Fairbanks, thirty years old, was found dead recently in the kitchen of a fifth floor apartment at 364 Lincoln place, where he boarded.

Michael Mullane, assistant superintendent of the building, had traced the odor of illuminating gas to the room and summoned police. Five gas jets of the kitchen range were wide open and the lifeless form of Fairbanks, in silk flowered pajamas and purple dressing gown, was posted close to the stove.

Two Notes Found.
Nearby were two sheets of paper, one reading "Notify G. E. H. Thornton, 1420 Cross Bay boulevard, Broad Channel," and the other, "Peggy Fairbanks, 45 South Elliott place." Thornton was a friend who had recently entertained him and Peggy Fairbanks was the widow.

Mr. Fairbanks, who claimed the body, said later that a passion for publicity had brought him from time to time into a limelight in which he did not belong. He was an appraisal clerk employed by the Brooklyn Edison company, with a salary of $35 a week. When, in August, 1930, word reached various newspaper offices that he had inherited $1,500,000 from Andrew Fairbanks, an uncle in California. Reluctantly he confirmed it. And when interviewers called he gave interviews.

He was a bachelor. He would keep right on working at the same job, for he wanted to keep busy. No marriage was "out." But he would adopt a couple of children.

The "bachelor" part of the story he withdrew when Mrs. Margaret Moran Fairbanks appeared with a marriage license and proved that she was his wife. She had met and married him after his name had appeared in headlines as a "Broadway playboy" who squandered a $500,000 fortune.

Weakness for Headlines.
By the time the "inheritance" came along they had separated, although she still "liked" him. Following his suicide, Mrs. Fairbanks declared that Fairbanks had a weakness for vicious romance and adventure through the headlines. He had squandered no half million and inherited no $1,500,000.

When District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards of Nassau last year was investigating the mystery of the death of Starr Faithful, Fairbanks talked himself into that, said he had met and liked her. But it was, again, romance. He remained a clerk until two weeks ago, when he gave up his job.

But they remained good friends, said the widow, and had dinner together on last New Year's eve.

At the Broad Channel address, Mr. Thornton said he had known Fairbanks for two years, but that if he had inherited any large amount of money he must have spent it before. Fairbanks had told him of buying a $100,000 yacht which was destroyed by fire—uninsured. Fairbanks told him, said Thornton, that he knew Starr Faithful, but though the two men roomed together at the time of the presumed acquaintance, Thornton was never introduced to her and never met her.

Neither he nor Mrs. Fairbanks nor the police could give any reason for the suicide.

Auto Necking Is O. K.— if Hands Are on Wheel

El Paso, Texas.—If your girl friend necks you while you are driving in El Paso, police will not interfere—that is, as long as the driver has both hands on the steering wheel.

Police Sergeant J. W. Fitzgerald made this announcement in his campaign for safe automobile driving here.

"Boys should keep both hands on the wheel while driving," he admonished.

"There's nothing wrong—so far as traffic safety is concerned—with a girl putting her arm around her boy friend's neck, as long as she does not hamper his driving."

Dairy Farmer Puts Out Fire in Barn With Milk

Ferndale, Calif.—Something new in the fire-fighting line was discovered here recently by Ernest Lanini, dairy rancher. Fire broke out in the engine room of the barn, where Lanini was milking. He ran out, telephoned the fire department, and then went back and put out the blaze by throwing fresh milk on it.

Iowa Kingfisher Killed Robbing Goldfish Pools

Newton, Iowa.—When pools freshly stocked with gold fish for the season remained stocked for only a few days before all the fish were gone a watch was set.

M. E. Vincent, armed with a shotgun, started himself beside a pool and waited for the gold fish thief. The thief came, a belted kingfisher. As the bird swooped after a fish it was shot and killed.

WITH SOUR CREAM

A S OFTEN sour milk and cream are substitutes, one must be alert to make the best use of each valuable food.

Johnny cake is one of the best of hot breads to use the sour milk or cream. If one has cream, the shortening may be lessened or left out entirely.

Sour milk and sour cream may take the place of the sweet milk in any recipe when using flour. A bit of soda, often not more than an eighth of a teaspoonful need be added and the usual baking powder used as in the recipe for sweet milk. It is better to stir the soda into the sour milk or cream, noting that it is well dissolved, before adding to the flour and egg mixture.

When sour cream is to be substituted for fat, one must remember that it takes the place of some of the liquid as well as fat. A very little experience will enable one to judge of the richness of cream and the exchange when using it instead of butter.

Another point to be remembered is that sour milk needs a bit more thickening than sweet, as the lactic acid acts on the gluten of the flour, softening it.

Sugar Cookies.
Take one cupful of sugar, one egg, one cupful of thick sour cream, one-half teaspoonful of soda, flour to roll—about two cupfuls—two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of lemon extract and a grating of nutmeg. Mix and roll out into a portion at a time. Brush the cookies with milk and sprinkle with coarse sugar. Bake ten minutes in a hot oven. This amount makes three dozen thin cookies two and one-half inches in diameter.

Chocolate Drop Cookies.

Take one cupful of brown sugar, one egg, one cupful of thick sour cream, one-half teaspoonful each of soda and salt, three-fourths of a cupful of nutmeats, one and one-half cupfuls of whole wheat flour, one teaspoonful of baking powder, three square of chocolate and three-fourths of a cupful of raisins. Mix and drop by teaspoonfuls on baking sheet. Bake at lower temperature than sugar cookies. This recipe makes three dozen.

AN OLD MAN'S ENVY

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

ALL an old man's tasks are done.

One by one

All his races have been run.

Now he sits beside the fire,

Old Grandpa,

Little now his limbs tire.

All of youth's task lie ahead,

Roads to tread,

Things to master, and to dread.

Age is like an ancient mill,

Gray and still,

All the grist ground that it will.

Youth can never quiet sit,

Smoke a bit,

With all life ahead of it.

Youth must up and on its way,

While the gray

Sit and think and smoke all day.

Youth must up and sow the grain,

Shift the crane—

And I hear youth's voice complain.

All an old man's tasks are done,

And his fun—

Let me tell you this, my son:

Nothing would seem hard to do

If you knew

How an old man envies you.

Outrivals Hen

If a hen ever laid an egg equal in size to about one-third of its own body, such a feat would be recorded as a world's record. Yet such a feat, by way of comparison, would no more than equal that of a queer variety of snail, which is found in northern Brazil. There is nothing slow about this giant Brazilian snail, for its eggs equal in size one-third of its own body and are about as large as a pigeon's egg. It lays four or five of these eggs at one time. Snail "chicks" usually hatch out within three weeks. Those of the edible variety grow to market size within a year.

MONTGOMERY WARD & CO.

FASHIONS By ELEANOR GUNN

Paris Captured by Captivating Capes

(Copyright, 1932, by Fairchild)

Varied types of capes, some half-jacket and some half-scarf, have been a feature at all recent evening gowns in Paris.

White satin is lined with black and worn with a black gown, at top left.

Ruby-red transparent velvet is posed over a white gown, with white flowers on the shoulder.

A double-flounce capelet is of the same deep-rose chiffon as the gown, with clips of brilliant at either side.

Below, a black velvet capelet has a large brooch of brilliant catching the scarf on one shoulder.

White satin bordered in sable is worn with a white satin gown.

The little cape scarf at the right, of white satin, like the dress worn with it, shows the type of summer evening wrap that is tremendously fashionable in Paris just now.

We Can at Least Be Sure Of Such as These

New York—It is often advisable to be dull, sartorially speaking. The dull fabrics have it for the moment, and the more brilliantly surfaced fabrics serve only to accent their dullness. The one-old dull-and-still alliance continues, in one color or in contrasting colors. Both types of fabric have their uses, but at present the dulls hold the biggest vote.

The story of longer skirts has gone way beyond the twice-told tale limits. It is now almost an old, old story, except that something is always cropping up to make it news again. Chanel, for instance, of all people, has declared herself for long skirts for daytime wear. Here is one of them. Even to eyes accustomed to long skirts night after night, the spectacle is still something of a spectacle. The skirt-length question is developing into a sort of "every woman for herself" contest.

While waiting for the new models to be offered by the Paris couture, let's keep up interest in fall fashions by talking about the amusing little things Paris is doing as she marks time. There is, for instance, the typically Parisian notion of using "mousselines" for buttonholes. The "mousselines" are treated to make them hard and unbreakable but they retain their soft velvety look; they are hand painted in any color, absorbing the color to give an "antiqued" tone that is very pleasing; sometimes the natural shade of the mousseline is retained and only the centers are colored.

The glitter that was a part of the Mauve Decade is being revived with other details peculiar to that time. We have metal here and there, in fabrics and out, and we have the wrinkle of spangles and the sheen of beads again.

Possibly you are already wearing a veil. If not, you surely will try one before long. The newest have chenille dots, and some are quite colorful.

Forward, Says the French Milliner

Close-fitting hats of dull-surfaced felt, either rakishly tilted over one eye, or modified to give some what greater depth in types adapted to the matron, were emphasized by several French millinery authorities who recently arrived in this country. These hats are of tailored calibre, and have interesting details of hand-work for elaboration, making important use of grosgrain ribbon, satin pipings, and covered buttons.

THIS CHANEL AFTER-NOON FROCK IS LONG

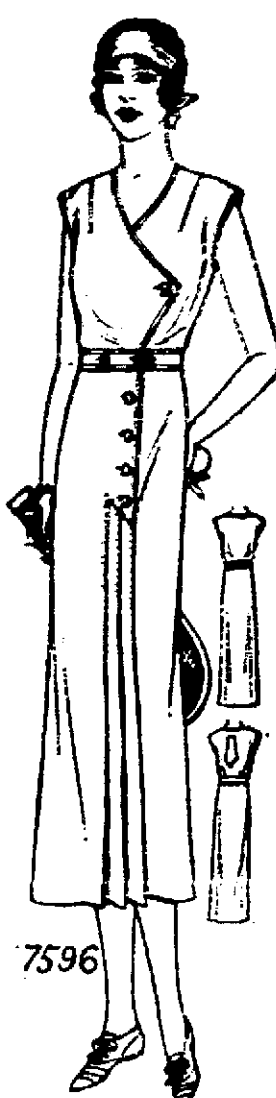

(Copyright, 1932, by Fairchild)

Nut-beige crepe is chosen for this afternoon frock. It is sleeveless, but has a matching bolero with three-quarter sleeves. It is trimmed with gold buttons that correspond with the gold link belt.

Trimming all tend to emphasize a jutting forward line which brings the hat high on one side, revealing the coiffure, and then gives a somewhat deeper back line. Trimmings of a tailored character, such as ribbon worked in small loop clusters, are utilized.

OUR PATTERN

A New Model For a Sports Frock

7596. This design boasts of plaitfulness cleverly placed, and a becoming surprise closing. The shoulders are cut long to cover the top of the arms. The back may be cut out for "sun tan", or finished plain. Linen, plain or printed, pique and rough weave silks are suggested for this model.

It is designed in 5 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 38 will require 3 1/2 yards of 35 inch material. To finish as in the large view, will require 5 1/2 yards of piping or bias binding 1 1/2 inch wide. The width of the dress with plaitfulness extended is 1 1/2-2 yard.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern

Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the class wanted.

Gambling in Knowledge
Do not scatter. We do not become educated by gambling in knowledge. There's no sense in reading widely on the chance that this information may be useful some day.—American Magazine.

May Wedding Separation
The separation that May is an unlucky month for weddings comes from the Romans. Their month of May contained two important festivals—Bona Dea, the feast of the goddess of Chastity; and Lemuria, the celebration of the dead. Marriage at that time, then, was certain to be ill-omened, for it was an offense against the goddess, and, secondly, an affront to the dead to introduce gaiety into a period of mourning.

Warlike Term
The word guerrilla is the Spanish diminutive of guerra, meaning war.

Wife Was Fat No Longer Attractive LOST HUSBAND'S LOVE

The above headlines appeared in a New York newspaper of April 4 in connection with a divorce trial that has attracted wide attention.

"She was a beautiful woman," one witness testified, "but she got fat and is not attractive any more."

Thousands of women are getting fat and losing their appeal just because they do not know what to do. If you are fat how would you like to lose it and at the same time gain in physical charm and acquire a clean, clear skin and eyes that sparkle with buoyant health?

And gain in energy and activity?

Why not do what thousands of women have done to get rid of pounds of unwanted fat? Take one half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast and keep it up for 30 days. You can help the action of Kruschen by cutting down on pastry and fatty meats and going light on potatoes, butter, cream and sugar. Then weigh yourself and see how many pounds you have lost.

Kruschen Salts are a blend of 5 mineral salts most helpful to body health. Best of all, a bottle of Kruschen Salts that will last you for 4 weeks costs but a trifle. Ask Medicine Drug Stores or any druggist for a bottle and start to lose fat today.

It's the safe way to reduce but be sure you get Kruschen—your health comes first and remember this if you are not joyfully satisfied with results—money back.

IT COULD BE WORSE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

HOW dear a roof when days are raining.
How fair a fire when nights are cold!

Why can't we count the joys remaining?
Life always leaves a little gold.

I know we did not know the measure
Of joy when only joy was here.

For we must lose a little treasure
Before the rest is really dear.

We walk unseeing through the clover,
We pass unnoticed flow'rs and tree.

And then we find the summer's over,
And autumn here, and then we see.

I'm old, the autumn days surround me,
No clover now, no tree, no flow'r.

But surely something I have found me
To give me comfort in this hour.

We spend our lives like spending money,
For little joys, for new delights.

Who needs a fire when days are sunny?
Or needs a roof on summer nights?

And yet I never knew a brother
Who couldn't say, "It could be worse."

It always seems, somehow or other,
Life leaves a little in the purse.

Parrot Good "Watchdog"

One pet paid for his keep in London when thieves raided a house in Mayfair. A householder trained his parrot as a "watchdog" to protect his property, and recently it had a chance to display its skill. Polly flew at the raiders and drew blood. Feathers and overturned furniture testified to the ferocity of the battle. The robbers were captured and told the court how they had been driven off by the screeching fighting bird.

Woodstock Historical Society Meeting

At The Theatres

Members of the Woodstock Historical Society and their friends to the number of about 150 gathered at the spacious grounds of Prof. James T. Shotwell's place Tuesday evening, August 16, to enjoy a basket supper and absorb information on various phases of local history as presented by Prof. Dora Ryan Fox of Columbia University. Dr. Nell Stevens of Washington, D. C., and Miss Anita Smith of Woodstock. The meeting was presided over by Keadar Cramer, vice president, in collaboration with Prof. Shotwell, who introduced his colleague and guest, Dr. Fox, as one who, with Dr. Charles Beard, had revolutionized the teaching of history at Columbia during the last quarter of a century.

Dr. Fox in his most interesting talk traced the founding of the Woodstock Historical Society as one more proof that Americans are becoming historically minded. He stressed the importance of local history as being national history locally exemplified. Local historical societies are not, as some think, merely a form of genealogical vanity. A knowledge of local history and traditions is necessary in order that people may understand present times and choose the wisest course of action. State historical societies have been of inestimable value in collecting and preserving historical materials. Local historical societies are of later growth; the most important part of their work still lies before them and needs the cooperation of everyone, for without their help much of value will disappear from American life. Prof. Fox described the headquarters of the New York State Historical Association at Ticonderoga. The association is making an inventory of all privately owned historical manuscripts in the state and furnishes cards illustrating its many interesting exhibits at the headquarters.

Dr. Stevens in his paper on the Geological History of Woodstock performed the difficult feat of making geology clear to the layman. The Woodstock rock formation is what is known as Devonian, formed, according to some geologists, from 250 to 300 million years ago. Dr. Stevens said "those that recall and love the Genesis story of creation can place the Devonian time somewhere in the forenoon of the fifth day". The ice age came much later, a mere 25 or 30 thousand years ago, and the path of the glacier which moved over Otsego has been traced by Dr. Stevens, who says it gave us Echo Lake and presumably Cooper Lake also by damming the bed of the Sawkill. Incidentally Woodstockers may thank the piratical tendencies of the Sawkill, which, by robbing the Beaverkill at an early period, made possible the bathing pools now enjoyed by Woodstock residents.

Anita Smith's paper on "Hearsay and History of Mink Hollow" was thoroughly enjoyed by all present, being full of racy anecdote and local lore of the early inhabitants of this romantic region, with the genealogy of the various families briefly traced. Many were surprised to hear that it derives its name not from the furbearing animal, but from a runaway slave named Mink who took refuge there. Bearville also owes its name to an early resident and not to Bruin, but there were plenty of wolves, panthers and wildcats to keep the settlers' guns cocked and ready. Art was not absent in Mink Hollow a hundred years ago, as Miss Smith's photograph (by Mr. Cohn) of a painting by a local resident proves.

The cordial hospitality of all the members of the Shotwell family added greatly to this memorable evening.

Today.
Kingston: "Radio Patrol." Swell entertainment, filled with suspense, action, laughter and tragedy, all mixed skillfully into a well balanced and enjoyable picture. It's a talkie that glorifies the American police. What the men who serve the law have to do and act in the line of duty is interestingly brought before the audience. The plot centers around two brother officers, both members of a radio patrol car, and both in love with the same girl. One of them accepts a bribe, and because he does, another police officer is killed and a bank robbed. He proves himself worthy by sticking to his dangerous post where he is killed. Robert Armstrong is outstanding in the role of the officer who accepts the bribe and who sacrifices his life for that mistake, and Lila Lee was never more appealing as the girl who loved and believed in him. June Clyde, Russell Hopton and Andy Devine are also in the cast.

Orpheum: "Gay Diplomat" and "Son of Oklahoma." A double feature offering with great diversity. The first is the story of a gentleman gigolo who is unusually skillful in the art of making love. Genevieve Tobin and Betty Compton are the favored ladies. Ivan Lebedeff is the handsome lover. "Son of Oklahoma" is a Bob Steele western opera, that has gun play, horse play and a bit of a plot.

Broadway: "Lady and Gent." The rough and ready story of a big city lady and gent who appear to be without love or sympathy on the outside, but who prove to be very human after all. George Bancroft and Wynne Gibson make a fine movie team. Miss Gibson's work being especially effective. There is action every minute in this rough house tale, and James Gleason and Charles Starrett also contribute some noteworthy acting.

Tomorrow.

Orpheum: "Forgotten Commandments" and "Sons of the Saddle." Sam Maritz, latest European beauty, Gene Raymond, Marguerite Churchill, and Irving Pichel are the featured players in this story of what Hollywood thinks Russia is like. "Sons of the Saddle" gives Ken Maynard a chance to do his stuff with gun and larist, and "Tarran", the wonder horse, again proves himself one of the talkies most talented actors.

There are no kept that no control of appropriations is established. Consequently, expenditures have been made, and the city is now faced with the necessity of raising money to pay the same. Such expenditures have been made in the past, but they have been made in a haphazard manner, and the city is now faced with the necessity of raising money to pay the same.

It is evident that such methods are not sufficient to proper accounting and to the collection of the taxes of the city. There is no law which requires the treasurer to keep a record of the expenditures of the city, and the city is now faced with the necessity of raising money to pay the same.

To illustrate how it happens that the city is now faced with the necessity of raising money to pay the same, the following is a summary of the expenditures of the city for the year 1931.

Upon certification of the annual budget to the treasurer by the common council he makes the following journal entry:

Estimated Revenues
To Uncollected Revenues

As taxes and estimated revenues are collected, credit is made of the amounts received to such accounts respectively and cash is debited.

This entry is followed by a collateral entry charging "uncollected revenues" with the amount of taxes and revenues collected.

When expenditures are made by any division of government the amount of the same is certified to the treasurer, who makes an allotment to cover the same from the general revenue account by journal entry thus:

General Revenues
To Board of X

The warrants drawn by the Board of X are credited to cash and charged against the allotment credited to such board.

Under such accounting procedure it is obvious that no control over appropriations can possibly exist. All that is shown by the entries subsequent to those setting up the budget is an accounting of the inflow and outflow of cash.

In order to ascertain the standing of any appropriation, as the books are now kept, it is necessary to summarize the expenditures relating to the same on the city treasurer's books, and then refer to the minutes of proceedings of the common council for the sum appropriated to meet the said expenditures, supplemented by an examination of departmental voucher records, and orders to determine how much the said appropriation was encumbered.

Furthermore, the accounting is operated without consideration of a balance sheet, supported by a true account of revenue and expense as shown by the trial balance appended to this report. It is doubtful if a statement of assets and liabilities could be constructed from the book records without an appraisal of the physical properties of the city.

The operation of a system of accounts by the treasurer in disregard of the provisions of the city charter, and the scattering of responsibility for controlling appropriations among the various spending agencies of the city has seriously interfered with the execution of the annual budget.

A striking example of this statement is shown in the accounts for the fiscal year of 1931.

Attention is called to overdrafts of funds appropriated for expenses incurred during that year.

Board of Public Health 50,074.96

Coroners Inquests 155.69
Total Overdrafts $207,665.67

One hundred and sixty thousand dollars of this overdraft was financed by issuance of temporary loans in anticipation of the collection of taxes raised in the 1932 levy: $20,000.00 was incorporated in the budget of 1932, and no provision has been made for the payment of the balance, viz. $27,582.29.

An act was passed by the state legislature to legalize the above overdrafts of monies appropriated in the budget of 1931, and also to legalize the temporary loans in the sum of $160,000 used to pay a portion of the said over-expenditure and to provide payment of the portion of said overdraft not otherwise provided for.

This act was vetoed by the Governor March 28, 1932.

It is stated in this discussion that the preamble of the resolution authorizing the city of Kingston to borrow the sum of $135,000 upon its certificates of indebtedness, recites that such sum is required for emergency expenditures; and that the preamble of the resolution authorizing the loan of $25,000 recites that such sum is required to pay for additions and betterments of a permanent nature in excess of monies heretofore appropriated for the year 1931, financed by a bond issue.

Nothing appears on the record that shows that any emergency existed which required the borrowing of monies to defray the expense of the same. The accounts of the city, however, show that appropriations for 1931 expenditures were exceeded and the proceeds of the above mentioned loans were to cover the amount of such excess expenditures.

Attention is called to the language of the preamble and resolutions relating to the above mentioned loans. It is particularly noticeable that no provision of the statutes is mentioned pursuant to which such loans were alleged to have been authorized.

This may possibly have been an oversight, or it may have occurred for the reason that no law could be found in support of the asserted emergency, or the ratification of an appropriation overdraw.

The act authorizing the above loans was a palpable excess of authority; and any bank taking the paper was bound to inquire as to the power of the common council to so contract.

In this case the banks appear to have accepted the certificates of indebtedness upon the presumption that the council had the authority to issue them for the purpose stated, without making investigation or inquiries as to legality of all acts and proceedings incident to the issuance of such loans.

Banks are required by law to keep within certain prescribed limits defined by the legislature as essential to the safety of the banking business. The primary object is to protect the public, including depositors, and after that to enable the stockholders to secure a fair return on their investment.

"Every person dealing with a municipal corporation, or receiving its obligations is supposed to be cognizant of the provisions of its charter."

A discussion showing the illegality of the aforesaid loans will be found in a report of a review of the city's affairs made to the State Comptroller in December 1931.

Financing Special Improvements and Appropriations With General Fund Monies

Examination of the accounts of the city treasurer disclosed that it has been his practice in several cases to finance assessable improvements and emergency work relief obligations from monies in the general fund otherwise appropriated.

Numerous assessable improvements have been financed in part or in whole from general fund monies when the common council has failed to provide the means of defraying the cost of the same. All monies paid out on account of such improvements are charged to the improvement.

When the general fund monies are running low, the treasurer has made request for the issuance of temporary loans to finance the improvement, and when the loans are authorized and floated the proceeds are applied to the reimbursement of the general fund for the sum advanced.

The sum of $85,740.62 has been paid out on account of emergency relief work. $81,740.62 of this sum was paid from the general fund monies otherwise appropriated, and $15,000 from the proceeds of a $15,000 note issued to meet expenditures for emergency relief measures.

In November, 1931, the common council authorized a loan in the sum of $150,000 and appropriated the proceeds of the same for purposes pertaining to emergency work relief, as provided by the provisions of Chapter 798 of the Laws of 1931.

The treasurer has borrowed only $11,000 of the $150,000 authorized, and neglected to borrow under this authorization in additional amounts sufficient to meet the expenditures chargeable against the sum appropriated.

There is no force or value to the argument that, by financing assessable improvements from general fund monies not immediately required for general fund transactions, or applying general fund monies likewise to the payment of emergency work relief expenditures rather than to borrow money as authorized to do, results in a saving of interest charges for the city.

A financial officer of a municipal corporation has no inherent power to use his personal discretion in receiving or disbursing public funds in his custody. His powers are defined by law, and it is his duty to understand and follow those laws even though he may doubt their soundness. He should know that funds must be provided for all expenditures before they may be legally incurred, and before any payment for expenses incurred can be legally made. And he must understand that appropriations authorized for specific expenditures can be used only for expenditures properly chargeable to such appropriations, and that such expenditures cannot be legally charged against funds appropriated for any other purpose.

Section 1855 of the Penal Law provides as follows: "A public officer, or clerk of any such officer, or any other person receiving money on behalf of, or on account of the people of this state, or for or on account of any city, or to the use of any person not entitled thereto, without authority of law, any money received by him as such officer, clerk, deputy or otherwise, is guilty of a felony."

CITY CLERK

Office

The office of city clerk is a town clerk's office for the purpose of depositing and filing therein all books and papers required by law to be filed in the town clerk's office, and the clerk possesses all the powers and discharges all the duties of the clerk, except in so far as the same shall be inconsistent with other provisions of this act. (See Section 35, City Charter.)

Duties

The city clerk is clerk of the common council, and keeps a record of the ordinances, rules, regulations, resolutions, and proceedings of the council.

He keeps a record of all monies received by him, and pays the same over to the city treasurer on or about the fifth day of each month. He also keeps an account of the expenditures by the city. All monies drawn from the city treasury in pursuance to an order signed by the mayor and countersigned by the clerk. He is required to specify on each warrant the purpose for which it is issued, the number of the voucher, and the date of the resolution pursuant to which it is issued.

It is observed that voucher number, and date of resolution authorizing payment are not mentioned on the warrants, and the purpose is often vaguely stated.

Licenses

The clerk issues marriage, hunting, and dog licenses and receives the fee for the same.

An audit of the records of licenses shows that the monies received for licenses issued is correctly accounted for, and paid over to the city treasurer, as required by law.

Books Kept

Minutes of proceedings of the common council and committees thereof.

Cash book.

Voucher record, columnar ruled showing expenditures as follows:

General expenses
Electric expenses
Salaries

Board of Health expenses
Examining Board of Plumbers expenses

Civil Service expenses
Interest expenses
Bond and interest
General ledger
Journal

The various departments of the city deliver to the city clerk monthly statements of receipts and disbursements, the summary of which is posted to the general ledger. The city treasurer also reports the sums allowed to such departments, which are posted in the general ledger.

All this labor of bookkeeping duplicates that of the city treasurer and serves no purpose.

It is, however, necessary, as the accounting system of the city is now operated for the clerk to keep a voucher record of all accounts contracted by the common council, board of health, plumbing board, civil service board and the city judge. It is also necessary, in compliance to the charter provisions, to keep an appropriation ledger in which appropriations shall be set up with each department of the city, and charge against the same all claims audited and paid relating to each of such appropriations, together with a columnar cash book in which he shall enter all revenues of the city received and collected by him. All bookkeeping beyond these requirements should be discontinued.

SHANDAKEN

Shandaken, Aug. 18.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Van Valkenburgh and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Schlausker spent the week-end in New York city.

Miss Muriel Dyer, of Summit, N. J., is a guest of Miss Phyllis Osterhout for the week.

A. E. Anderson of Long Island is spending some time at Ward Hummell's.

The funeral of Ira Olmstead, which was held in the M. E. Church on Sunday, was largely attended. The military service was very impressive. Much sympathy is extended to the bereaved family.

Miss Hattie Johansen of New York city is visiting Miss Ethel Gosso.

Mrs. Ward Hummell and daughter spent Wednesday with friends in Fleischmanns.

Easel Rowe and wife of Miami, Fla., are visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Rowe, of Allabon. Mr. Rowe is chief pilot of the Pan-American Airways, carrying mail to South America. He was at one time co-pilot with Lindbergh.

A group of young people went on a moonlight picnic party to the ever popular "Weir" on Tuesday night.

In the golf tournament played between Woodstock and Rip Van Winkle Club players on Saturday on the Rip Van Winkle course, the Shandaken players won with a score of 14-9.

Charles Griffin motored to Long Island on Saturday night to visit his mother, Mrs. Nettie Griffin. He made the return trip on Sunday.

Nurses

We have always been afraid of nurses with their professional austerity, for they do so many things we do not understand. Here is the most pressing question we failed to ask: "Why is it that one has to be awakened at 6:15 in the morning to have his hands and face washed when he is going to be given a bath anyway at 7:15?" It is a most annoying ordeal, but when a nurse says "Wash your face and hands," we wash. Nurses are so much like superior officers.—Concord Monitor.

White House's Gold Piano

The gold piano in the East room of the White House cost $15,000. A plate attached to the instrument bears the following inscription: "This piano was made for and presented to the United States government, Theodore Roosevelt being President, January, 1908, by Steinway and Sons, R. M. and J. H. Hunt, designers of the case. Decorations painted by Thomas W. Deming. Advisory committee, Edwin H. Blanchfield, Thomas W. Deming, Frederick Howes, Richard M. Hunt and J. Burr Tiffany."

The Perfect Chicken

There are strange and interesting things to be learned at the poultry shows where rich amateurs who breed birds for the fun of it bring their prizes.

For instance, it takes 22 years of breeding in any one line to produce what is termed in the poultry world, "perfection." Five years of breeding are needed to bring out just the standard and qualifications of the bird.

The wealthy amateur is invaluable to the poultry business. No commercial breeder can afford the experimentation, the long and prolix processes that are practiced on the big estates in the striving for improvement.

White Mahogany

The forest service says that white mahogany is a trade name for Primavera, which is found on the western coast of Mexico and southward to Guatemala. The wood is moderately heavy and hard, works well and is said to give little trouble by warping. It is creamy white to yellowish brown in color. The grain is interlocked and the pores are of about the same size as in true mahogany, so that the figure produced, especially when finished with a mahogany stain, is similar to that of true mahogany.

Forty-eight per cent of the total United States output of standard typewriters, according to commerce department figures, was shipped to foreign markets in 1931.

Dairy Improvement Association Report

The following is a complete summary of the July report of both branches of the Ulster County Dairy Improvement Association conducted by the Farm Bureau. Through the leading dairymen who are members of this association, considerable progress is being made in the improvement of Ulster county cattle. Dairymen looking for a herd sire or better stock are urged to visit the members of this association before going out of the county to purchase such stock.

American Building Soviet Palace

HECTOR O. HAMILTON (right), young American architect of East Orange, N. J., who shared with two Russian architects the first prize offered in the world competition for a design for the Palace of the Soviets, is shown talking with a workman on the site of the new building in Moscow, where the Church of Christ the Redeemer formerly stood. The famous Kremlin may be seen in the background.

Light in Life

The threads of life and light are interwoven in an intricate pattern. The complexity of their interactions is shown in a study of the correlations of radiation and organic phenomena just made by the Smithsonian Institution. Understanding of their relationships is said to be of growing importance owing to the increasing employment of radiation therapy by physicians.

About "Mara's Nest"

Early Saxons believed in the existence of a queer monster named Mara, which crouched on the chest of sleepers (hence the term nightmare). This beast was supposed to live in a nest lined with gold. Credulous people used to look for Mara's nest hoping to discover the treasure. From this legend, any supposed great discovery which led to nothing, has become known as Mara's or a mara's nest.

Circus Staged By Camp Wendy Girls

Last week the Girl Scouts of Camp Wendy in Wallkill staged their annual circus under the direction of Miss Gertrude Hoffman. The affair was one of the most outstanding ever produced by the camp.

Many new and original ideas were introduced which pleased the large audience of parents and friends along the route of the lake.

Invitations were sent out to leading citizens of Wallkill along with the requests to parents and friends. This was not done in past years but the camp promoted such great success in the past that the keen interest aroused led to the issuing of invitations.

The camp was in top-notch shape for the affair which opened with an impressive water parade in which a gondola drawn by sea-horses led off. In the gondola were the circus musicians playing upon their strange instruments. Following the gondola was a monster sea serpent, his chrome yellow hide glistened in the sun. Then came the elephants, one of which capriciously only to be frightened again by an expert passenger who treated the animal lightly. Slowly the cortege moved over the lake to a distant point and then back again with the onlookers admiring the parade and applauding. Then came the diving events, including mysterious feats by the "Snake Charmer" of the group. Swimming followed and then supper was served.

The visitors were invited to the "Fairy House" made up of several tents filled with treats, many behind bars. Other attractions included a chariot race, tight rope act, a fortune teller and a weight guesser. The performance was interrupted by a thunder storm and a scramble was made for the sleeping tents.

The 70 girls at the camp are divided into five units: Pioneers, 16 years down to Brownies, 7 years, in between are Tinker Bells, Pirates and Lost Boys, 9 years old. All had a part in the circus.

Great credit was given to the 21 counselors of the camp for their splendid work which showed signs of outstanding ability. They were chosen in January. One counselor applied from Milwaukee, Wis.

There is still another week of camp, starting Saturday, August 20, until Friday, August 26. Parents wishing to send their daughter or daughters for this last week should get in touch with Mrs. N. J. Murphy, 9 Andrew street, or phone 181. Mrs. Murphy is the only one in Kingston who has the authority to make reservations at the camp.

RECENT ACTIVITIES AT CAMP CRAWFORD

Brown Station, Aug. 18—Last Saturday some of the Camp Crawford folks decided they would like to see the far-famed village of Woodstock, so they chartered a bus and drove over to attend the market fair which is held out-doors on Saturday and where many beautiful things are displayed for sale. They found the fair very attractive and also the whole village so they wandered here and there absorbing artistic ideas and with them.

New arrivals at camp are Miss Helen Spielman of New York city and Mrs. Albert Kixman and two children of Hoboken, N. J., who are here for two weeks.

Mrs. Rudolph and two daughters of Hoboken, N. J., who are staying at Ellenville for the summer, spent Monday at camp visiting friends. Miss Dorothy Ott and Grant Schlossstein of Newark, N. J., were here Tuesday and spent the day. On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Gross and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar B. London and children of Kingston spent the day as guests at the camp.

The big event of the day was when Mr. Gross in his anxiety to reach the boat in the middle of the lake, with a large box of candy, which he was carrying there as a treat for the children, tipped the canoe over and fell into the lake. He was gallantly rescued by the athletic swimming instructor, Miss Ginger Weidner. Mr. Gross has made application for a course of swimming lessons as he does not want to be caught floundering in the Stillwater again. The candy still reposes on the bottom of the lake though the box was rescued by Miss Weidner.

That same evening all the campers were invited over to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gross to enjoy a big bonfire and a feast of good things to eat.

For the regular hiking expedition on Tuesday of this week a party of eleven climbed to the top of High Point. Two autos carried them up the mountain as far as the cars could go. There were some good mountain climbers in the crowd but they all decided that this was quite a hike. The view was magnificent though the atmosphere was somewhat hazy. The Ashokan reservoir from the highest point looked like a miniature model ready to be put on a post card. Miss Burdick recalled some fond reminiscences of mountain climbing in the Rocky Mountains in Colorado, where they frequently climb above the timber line and often go as far as the snow line. Miss Walther was right at home any place on High Point as she has had plenty of such experiences among the mountains of her native land, Germany. Hiking and climbing are included in the regular curriculum of many of the schools in that country, as it gives the students much valuable training and a chance to see the beautiful mountains of the land. The party included Miss Helen Crawford, Mrs. Kixman and Sonny, Elizabeth and Charlotte Keator and friend, Betty, Miss Helen Spielman, Miss Marion Weidner, Miss Susanne Walther and Miss Thekla Burdick. Lunch was eaten on top of the mountain and everyone rested for about two hours before making the descent. Then they all returned home well pleased with the day's outing.

ROAD BUILDING TO GIVE WORK TO IDLE

Emergency Relief Act Provides Highway Funds

Washington.—The emergency relief and construction act recently signed by President Hoover insures some measure of early unemployment relief through road construction, declared T. H. Cutler, president of the American Road Builders' association, in discussing road building activities.

While the $136,000,000 appropriation for highways is only a small part of the $2,122,000,000 relief measure, it is probable that road building will be the first work undertaken," stated Mr. Cutler. "Many states have plans ready so that a number of the projects can be begun immediately."

The highway funds provided in the total of $136,000,000 are: $120,000,000 for emergency construction on the federal aid highway system; $5,000,000 for national forest highways; $5,000,000 for improvements of national park roads; and $2,000,000 for roads through public lands.

States May Borrow

In addition to the direct highway appropriation, $300,000,000 is made available for relief and work relief, including highway and street work. This money will be loaned to states, counties and cities by the Reconstruction Finance corporation on request of governors of states. Since highway and street work is a popular and effective method of providing immediate work relief, a considerable part of this money may be requested by municipalities and counties, Mr. Cutler believes.

"Only a beginning in meeting unemployment conditions can be made with the funds available," declared Mr. Cutler, "but such relief will be widely distributed throughout the country. The provision permitting cities to use the relief funds for street work, and the fact that the relief funds do not have to be matched with local money assures considerable municipal highway work. Restrictions as to the amount of federal participation per mile also have been removed."

Employment benefits will not be confined to the workers on the roads directly but will extend to those working in factories, plants and mines producing road equipment and materials and also on transportation lines converging them to the construction sites.

"Because no part of the emergency highway funds must be matched by an equal amount from the states, regular state funds are released for new projects. The emergency federal-aid money will be used in lieu of state money to match regular federal aid in a number of states. Additional new work will be created through the releasing of federal-aid allotments in states that lack the necessary state funds to cover regular federal-aid projects."

The emergency highway appropriation will be distributed to the states in accordance with the regular federal-aid requirements on the basis of population, area and mileage of post roads.

Fisherman Captures Sunfish With 2 Mouths

Port Jervis, N. Y.—George Riffenburg caught a two-mouth sunfish one day while fishing in the Neversink. And to prove this is no fish story he has deposited the freak in a barrel of water where skeptical persons may see for themselves.

The fish's mouths open and shut alternately. One mouth may grab for a morsel of food while the other remains inactive.

Sanguinary Battle

In proportion to the number of combatants engaged and the actual time of fighting, it is said that more men were killed at the battle of Naumag. In Honduras, that is any other battle is recorded history. Three thousand or more were slain in a few minutes in 1907.

FIXING UP THE LIVING ROOM

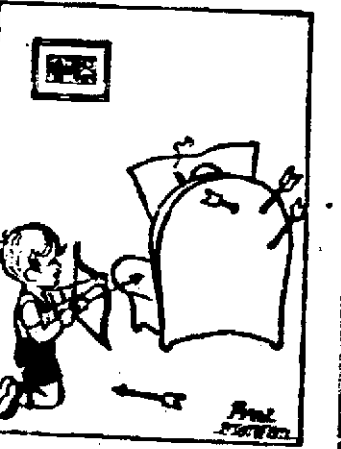

THE ideal living room is sunny in winter and shady in summer. It looks as warm as possible during the cold, damp months and as cool as possible during the torrid days of summer. It would seem as if nothing short of magic could make a room possess such varied possibilities. Much can be done by means of the decorations, but even if we could afford to have the walls of our living room done over twice a year. Much can be done by means of the window curtains, which may be changed in spring and autumn and used alternately for several seasons.

For summer we suggest curtains of a cool fairly light green—a green in which yellow and blue are equally combined or a green that is slightly bluish. In a room where direct sunlight does not come in winter it is important to let in as much light as possible, so in placing winter curtains for such a room select a sort that do not obstruct too much light.

Yellow or orange curtains are sometimes well chosen for winter. Daffodils or pot marigolds make a room look warm in winter, but yellow flowers are not such a good choice for warm days, when a vase filled with green leaves or green leaves with white flowers gives a cooler effect. An effect of coolness is given the living room if a jar of green leaves is set before the fireplace or if bunches of evergreen are arranged within the chimney place.

"Little Stories for Bedtime"

by Thornton W. Burgess

PETER TAKES JIMMY SKUNK'S ADVICE

What you don't think of, others may. So lend a heedful ear. The thing that most perplexes you May thus be made quite clear.

"STUPID, stupid, stupid!" exclaimed Peter Rabbit as he watched Jimmy Skunk out of sight. He didn't mean Jimmy; he meant himself. "Here I have been running my legs off trying to find the hole of Rattles the Kingsfisher without once stopping to think that I never have seen him near the places where I have been looking. Jimmy Skunk is right. He certainly is. The place to look for Rattles is near water. No one sees him anywhere else except when he is flying across from one body of water to another. Of course if he lives around the water he must have his home near it. That means it is somewhere along the Laughing Brook or over by the Big River. I wonder which place to visit first. Let me think! I must often see him at or near the Smiling Pool. If his home was over near the Big River I don't believe he would be at the Smiling Pool so much. Probably his home isn't far from there. I think I'll visit the Smiling Pool and do a little watching. There is nothing like watching if you want to find out things about other people. I ought to have stayed there in the first place when I asked Grandfather Frog about Rattles and he refused to tell me anything, except that it is time that Rattles makes his home in the ground." So Peter headed for the Smiling Pool once more. When he got there he sat down behind the Big Hickory Tree where Grandfather Frog could not see him. Somehow he didn't want Grandfather Frog to see him. He knew that Grandfather Frog was sharp enough to guess just why he was there, and after what Grandfather Frog had said about minding his own business Peter didn't feel just like being seen. So he kept out of sight of the big lilypond on which Grandfather Frog spends so much of his time. It wasn't long before he heard the harsh rattling noise that Rattles the Kingsfisher makes. He was coming up the Laughing Brook from below the Smiling Pool. Peter peeped out from behind the Big Hickory Tree and watched Rattles dive into the Smiling Pool and come up with a shining little minnow. Instead of flying over to the Big Hickory Tree and there swallowing the little fish, as Peter so often had seen him do, he turned and flew back down the Laughing Brook with it.

Peter scratched his head thoughtfully. "I wonder," thought he, "if that means that he has some babies at home and is taking the little fish to them. I wonder."

The more he wondered the more likely it seemed. He was still wondering when he heard that harsh rattling again, and there was Rattles the Kingsfisher flying straight toward him. With a final rattle he perched in the Big Hickory Tree where he could see over the Smiling Pool. There he waited and watched. Peter behind a big hickory tree waited and watched. Presently Rattles darted out and down, dived into the Smiling Pool and came up with another little fish. Just as before, he paused for a moment in mid-air, and flew away down the Laughing Brook. Peter's heels fairly itched to follow along the bank, but he waited and tried to be patient. After a while back came Rattles and did the same thing all over again.

The last doubt in Peter's mind vanished. Rattles was taking those fish to his children just as Welcome Robin takes worms to his children, and those children were somewhere down the Laughing Brook, and not so very far judging by the short time it took Rattles to go and come. He, Peter, would go down the Laughing Brook a little way and hide where he could watch Rattles as he passed back and forth. He would find out that secret from Rattles himself. So the next time Rattles disappeared with a little fish, Peter kicked up his heels and scampered along the bank down the Laughing Brook to look for a new hiding place.

Financial And Commercial

New York, Aug. 15 (AP)—The stock market was listless today, as traders were inclined to withhold judgment on the immediate outlook, pending more convincing evidence as to the market's position.

There was a mild rally in the morning, which carried a number of utilities and rails up a point or two, but these advances were replaced by losses of similar extent in a midday dip. By the fourth hour, there had been some recovery, but it lacked vitality.

Westinghouse, American Can and American Telephone registered losses of about 2 points, and Case got down 3, before meeting support. Issues off a point or so from the previous close included U. S. Steel, Standard of New Jersey, New York Central, Loews, and Du Pont. In the main, the rails held up fairly well.

The morning advance carried such issues as Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, Columbia Gas, Electric Power and Light, General Electric, and Johns Manville, temporarily one to two points higher. The day's news was meager and buyers were inclined to caution. Brokerage opinion, however, remained predominantly bullish on the market.

Wall Street looked for the weekly bank statements, to be published tomorrow, to make a favorable showing. The Bank of England's statement, out today, showed its reserve ratio up to 35.2 per cent, against 33.3 a week previously. This was largely due to a decrease in circulation, but there was also a small gain in gold.

Beth's Garden

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyrighted by Newspaper Syndicate)
(N.Y. Service)

OF COURSE the old Mordant place had a garden. Beth remembered coming there years ago with her mother, before Uncle Jaffrey died. The flowers were so marvelous and the garden so peaceful that they appeared almost unreal to the young girl and her mother, who lived in a small cottage nearby.

When Uncle Jaffrey died, Beth and her mother found that his beautiful property had been left to them, but there was not money enough to keep it going. Every year Mrs. Mordant divided the tiny income so that there was just enough to live on carefully, and nothing was ever left for the garden. People whispered that there must have been more money for Uncle Jaffrey was very rich, and grew quite miserly in the last year of his life, and they declared that somewhere about the old place he had hidden either one large sum or many smaller ones.

One day a good looking man came to the door. Mrs. Mordant met him and greeted him pleasantly.

"Mr. Smith, who said he was your lawyer, suggested that I come and see you about clearing up your garden and lawn in return for my board," he told her frankly. "I had pneumonia in the late winter and I really need light outdoor work to keep me outside—regular farm work is too vigorous just now—I am studying medicine at Blank university, and I cannot afford to spend money for a vacation." Then his pleasant voice grew wistful as he scanned the delightful old neglected garden. "It would be a wonderful opportunity for me," he added, "but you may have other plans."

Mrs. Mordant did not hesitate. "If Mr. Smith sent you here, you are certainly welcome—my daughter and I were just discussing the needs of the garden." Then she introduced Bruce Wayne to Beth and went to the house to select a room for him.

"Mother," said Beth, one August morning, "everything is so beautiful—do come out and witness the cleaning out of the large fountain. Bruce is going to do that next."

Bruce whipped off his old hat and grinned affectionately at the woman who had been so kind to him for several months. He had brought a deep wicker chair from the front veranda, and soon Mrs. Mordant was comfortably settled and watching these two young people who worked together so harmoniously. She was wondering whether her daughter, Beth, cared at all for the embryo doctor, whose heart was in his fine eyes, whenever he glanced at the lovely girl. There was no doubt that Bruce Wayne had lost his heart to her gentle Beth, and sighed a little as they worked so happily together, because she was thinking about the lack of money and the years they would have to wait.

Bruce had a large hammer and was prying off the fitted boards of the "tent-like" protection. "Hurry," he shouted when the last section had been removed and the rusty, stained proportions of the fountain were revealed.

"Are you going to paint the fountain, Bruce?" asked Beth's mother. "It should be painted; don't you think, Mrs. Mordant?" And then, bending over the deep basin he lifted out a dry and rusty steel box. "Why, what the dickens do you suppose this can be?" he queried. "Buried treasure?" He set it at Mrs. Mordant's feet.

"Oh, Bruce, smash it open," begged Beth. "Perhaps that is where poor Uncle Mordant hid his money!"

A few blows of the stout hammer opened the rusty box. Inside of that was a huge rubber pocket which held the missing wealth of Uncle Mordant. They sent Bruce for Mr. Smith, and during his absence, Beth confessed to her mother that she and Bruce loved each other and that he had asked her to marry him. "And I want to, mother darling," sobbed the girl, "even if we are quite poor at first! You understand, don't you?"

Mrs. Mordant nodded happily, and then the two men appeared and Mr. Smith checked up the contents of the old box. "The missing securities," he said. "You see, there was about a hundred thousand missing—and here it is!"

Bruce Wayne looked very glum. After the lawyer had left, Beth's mother said to him:

"Well, Bruce, aren't you happy over your good luck?"

"Oh, yes, Mrs. Mordant—of course. Only you see—well, I'm so poor—and Beth's a rich girl now."

"But, Bruce," said Mrs. Mordant, smiling understandingly, "the money's really part yours—you found it." And she went off to the house.

Bruce turned stammeringly to Beth. "Don't you see, dear," she said, "if you hadn't come into my garden we might never have found that money? So it is part yours—it's ours."

And so when Bruce left her garden Beth had promised to wait for him to finish his training, and he had promised to start out his professional and married career in the old Mordant home.

To Be Formal Gown Must Be Long

By CHERRIE NICHOLAS

MEMBER way back a season or so ago, when we "tried on" the then long-long frocks and looked with amusement at ourselves in the mirror? Made us almost hold our breath at the transformation they wrought in adding to our dignity and our stature. Well, fashion must have liked the idea, at least when we're formal, for all our smartest evening gowns designed for the now are like that.

It's amazing how "divinely tall" these snug-at-the-hipline skirts with their floor-length hemlines make us look. Then, too, when it comes to formality it's the length of the skirt which determines how formal—six inches from the floor, says Paris, for afternoon, while for evening the hemline drops to the floor and for very most formal it takes on a bit of a train.

The trio of de luxe gowns in the picture not only demonstrate the efficacy of length in achieving formality and stressing the coveted silhouette, but they also tell a fascinating story in regard to the handsome and varied materials which go to make up the best looking line, dance and otherwise festive gowns. Also the continued stellar role which cunning colorful velvet wraps are playing unmistakably registers in this group of summer evening modes.

The thrill which the gown to the right and the one in the center imparts is that each is fashioned of pique. This matter of silk pique for the evening gown is a new chapter being written into the pages of fashion history by leading French couturiers. Note the bias cut of the skirt gracing the center figure and how snugly it clings to the hips—points which are outstanding in the newer silhouette. The flare which releases about the knees also is according to the trend of lately accepted "lines." The short transparent velvet evening wrap trimmed with white fox is one of the most attractive types brought out this season.

The white pique dress to right with broad belt of lacquered red straw (very new) may be worn correctly either for afternoon or evening. That adorable jacquette which "sets it off" is made of transparent velvet, the exact red of the belt. The hat has a bit of Irish crochet lace for its trim together with a diminutive black bow by way of contrast. The entire costume carries that quaint mid-Victorian air about it which is so characteristic of many of the more recent fashions.

It's the utmost simplicity of this season's lace gowns which give them indescribable charm, and the lovely dress pictured to the left proves this to be so. Again in this exquisite frock of peau d'ange lace, whose color is powder blue, we see artfully molded hiplines contrasting a graceful flare about the knees. The length mildly suggests a train. The soft silken flowers are in three shades of Patou blue. With this most winsome lace gown midday wears a smartly simple slip-on wrap made of sheer velvet in a beguiling "new blue." Its kimono sleeves claim attention, for they interpret a new and rapidly becoming popular movement.

PATENT LEATHER LEADS FOR FALL

In the battle for supremacy in fall footwear, patent leather has again won out, according to the findings of the shoe and leather style conference held recently in New York. As a matter of fact, patent leather has risen to unprecedented heights since last fall when it was announced as a spring winner. The Paris stamp of approval, coupled with the vogue for black shoes, has had much to do with the present status of patent leather. It affords that dressier black shoe to take the place of colored or colored trim shoes when accessories matched the costume. With the vogue for black shoes, accessories harmonize rather than match.

While sandals are the outstanding models for summer, fall shoes will turn to oxfords, step-ins and pumps, with attachments, perforations, and some openwork. Considerable patent and suede in combination is predicted. Lizard and alligator in combination with patent again shows signs of creeping in.

With the vogue for patent leather trims and accessories, hat bands, hand bags, belts, shoes and even gloves, introduced this spring, and fashion predictions running true to form, midday will fairly scintillate from top to toe.

Velvet Now Being Used for Hats and Turbans

Now that the heat of summer is in full blast women are thinking about furs and wools and velvets. They are not only thinking about velvet hats but are wearing them.

French designers are using velvet for little turbans, small-brimmed hats and crowns of hats that have straw or other materials for brims.

Blossoms
Dark blue percale with small white dots goes to make one of the newer blouses to be worn with a navy blue suit or separate skirt.

Bites of Water Snakes
Snakes do breathe under water, and the biological survey says that it is possible for a swimming snake to strike a swimming man. It is said that the cottonmouth snake strikes in the water. There are species of sea snakes that strike only when in the water.

Smallest Planet
The Naval observatory says that the smallest of the major planets is Mercury; diameter about 3,000 miles. Of the minor planets, or asteroids, some are so small that it is impossible to measure their diameters. It is estimated that the smallest are less than 10 miles in diameter.

CONTRASTING TOP

By CHERRIE NICHOLAS

In the newer fashions the light top bodice continues to "carry on." In the advance fall showings a dress like the model pictured may be all of sat-in, black with white or the new extremely dark brown with pale beige, or it may be all velvet, using pale blue, fuchsia pink or white or near-white sheer velvet for the draped yoke and the sleeves. Of course, other fabric combinations may be employed, but the given ones are typical for dressy after-noon wear.

Postage Stamps and Taxes
At the present time the postage stamp is not a form of taxation. The entire revenue derived from the sale of postage stamps is applied to the cost of maintaining the Post Office department and handling the mail. With an increase in postage rate beyond the expense of postal service, such stamps are a form of taxation.

POULTRY

AT PULLETS HAVE FOOD THEY PREFER

Good Policy to Cater to Their Appetites.

By E. E. ANDREWS, New York State College of Agriculture—WNU Service.

Small poultry must be fed in racks.

Pullets should be separated into groups that are fairly uniform as to age and laying condition. The needs of a pullet laying heavily and of one that has not started to lay, are quite different. If they are both in the same rack they cannot be fed efficient

ly. Many different systems of feeding

are used, but the only successful ones

are those that make the birds eat enough grain and mash to maintain weight, and give enough overlay a satisfactory number of eggs.

Pullets that have been accustomed to eating their grain from hoppers

would have their grain in hoppers

when they are housed. Later the hoppers may be reduced in the hoppers and some grain scattered in the rack. But to change abruptly may result in loss of weight. At Cornell, experiments show that 100 hens, weighing about four to four and a half pounds

each, must eat 24 to 25 pounds of feed

each day to lay at the rate of 50 per cent and maintain body weight. If the amount declines only two or three pounds, they lose weight and egg laying slumps.

Sometimes, for apparently no reason, pullets refuse to eat enough to lay and to keep their weight. If this condition continues many days a slump

may develop or a molt, or both, may result. Then the skill of feeding is to get them to eat more food. The mash may be moistened with milk or semi-solid buttermilk. It may be necessary to cater to their appetites, they may eat more corn or more wheat, but give them whatever they prefer.

Whatever the kind or mixture of feed, allow at least one foot of feeding space for every five birds.

Growth Stimulated by

Meat Scraps in Ration

It seems to be the usual practice to feed no other protein supplement

when chicks are given liquid milk as the only drink. However, a small amount of meat scraps is sometimes added to the mash. Some experiments have been conducted at Purdue to determine the value of different levels of meat scraps in a ration

where chicks have milk only to drink.

In these experiments, a ration containing no meat scraps was compared to rations containing 5, 10 and 15 per cent of meat and bone scraps.

The chicks in all lots received liquid buttermilk as their only drink.

The rations containing 5 per cent

meat and bone scraps gave much more rapid growth than those containing no meat scraps. While 10 per cent meat scraps was somewhat superior to 5 per cent, the increase in the rate of growth was not as great as that produced by 5 per cent meat scraps compared to no meat scraps.

In the first experiment in which 15 per cent meat scraps was fed the chicks did not grow satisfactorily. No

explanation can be given for this poor growth since no abnormal conditions were observed in the post-mortem examinations of a number of these chicks.—Indiana Farmer's Guide.

Sun Rays for Chicks

Much has been said about the vitalizing effects of ultra-violet rays on growing chicks. There is some necessary effect which these rays exercise

upon chick systems, giving them the power to assimilate more of the mineral and bone forming elements in their ration.

While exposure of the young chicks

to chilling winds is not wise or practical, the use of material which admits

these valuable rays is becoming more general. Ordinary window glass takes the vitalizing rays out of sun rays, but the special products now furnished

will admit the rays, to the advantage of the growing flock.—Exchange.

Little Value in Yeast

Two theories which have gained headway among poultrymen have been expelled. One of these is that yeast, as a source of vitamin B, imparts a good poultry ration. The other is that crude fiber in the ration would overcome slipped tendon. It is doubtless true that for a poorly fed flock a ration very deficient in vitamin B might be helped by the use of yeast. Yet, with a good normal ration to start with, yeast evidently makes no improvement.—Successful Farming.

Keep Ration to Standard

When eggs are low in price, producers should be sure to feed a good balanced ration, states W. C. Tully, South

Dakota poultryman, who points out that only through economical production can any profit be had.

"With reasonably well-bred hens, experiments have shown that a proper mash ration, supplemented with crushed limestone, grain, green feed and plenty of warm water, will increase the egg production at least 75 per cent," he says.

Delicious Danger

A lockless lady from Lynn, soured

by the loss of life's little joys, declares that "Kissing is merely a scraping of germs. Is there," she challenges the Boston Transcript,

"any defense for this contaminating habit?" "Well," defends the editor,

"the good germ deserves another."

Find Youth Hiding in Blazing House

Toronto.—Looking for a bell he had missed in the collar of his home, Harold Canham, three, dropped a lighted match on the floor, setting fire to papers. He became frightened when he saw the fire and ran upstairs and hid under a bed. His mother saw the flames and called firemen. Unable to find the boy, the mother notified firefighters, who were searching upstairs when they heard the boy cough and found him beneath the bed.

MAN IN OVEN YEAR TO GET NEW SKIN

Case One of Most Unusual in Medical History.

Memphis, Tenn.—Those fishermen, who complain when they can't get at their sport as often as they like should think of L. Jack Doty, the "oven man" of Memphis, whose greatest sport was fishing.

Doty was burned in an automobile accident on May 3, 1931, when en route to a fishing retreat. Two others in the car died.

And since that time he has been lying on his stomach inside a casket shaped oven where the temperature approximates 103 degrees. Sometime in the next month or two doctors believe they can begin skin grafting.

Doty's back and legs were badly burned. The oven covers his bed and is made of iron and tin. Four big electric light bulbs heat the space and there is room at the opening for his arms and shoulders to stick out.

He has been confined at his home since last December.

Doty's fishermen friends haven't forgotten him.

He calls them his "gang," and they hold poker games in his bedroom. His wife, who Doty says is the "world's best nurse," brings in her friends too and they play bridge with him.

His case is one of the most unusual in medical history, physicians said, in that more than one-third of his body's surface was burned. Physicians generally agree when one-third or more of the body is burned death is general.

"Baby" Orchestra Lead by Five-Year-Old Boy

Seattle, Wash.—One of the youngest orchestras in America, led by a talented five-year-old boy, has been formed here.

Ten children ranging from three to seven years of age, make up the group under direction of Ethen-Ann Reinsig, former director of the Hollywood Baby Orchestra.

The children use violins one-eighth and one-quarter of the normal size. A small cello also is used.

Jackie Wroten, five, conducts the orchestra, and Jackie Le May is master of ceremonies, making all announcements.

The orchestra is a non-commercial organization and appears regularly at charity benefits.

Falls Asleep at Circus; Youth Breaks His Nose

Seattle.—A boy fell asleep at a circus.

This is believed to be an impossibility to both layman and psychologist.

Yet, R. A. Ringstad affirms this strange story and verifies it in the fact that his boy, Kenneth, age seven years, fell from his seat in the grandstand at the circus and suffered a broken nose and bruised elbow.

This when the performers in three rings were acrobating and pyramiding simultaneously.

Kenneth said the light dazzled him and he forgot that he was not at home, but the thud awakened him.

Cat Freed After Being Imprisoned Two Weeks

Berkeley, Calif.—The mystery of Berkeley's "ghost cat," whose plaintive meows came from everywhere and nowhere, has been solved.

William Sharpe discovered the "ghost," just a shabby cat of no particular ancestry, entombed in an old culvert. Upon investigation Sharpe found street department workmen had sealed up on old culvert at both ends, imprisoning the cat.

Emergency crews broke open the concrete pipe and freed the "ghost" after two weeks' captivity.

Police Radios Increase Arrests in Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh.—More than 5,000 arrests were made by the 38 radio crew cars of Pittsburgh during the first year's operation of the police broadcasting station WPDU.

Of the 42,000 calls answered by the cruising patrolmen, one still is recalled with a laugh. One crew picked upon an order from Chicago's short wave set and speeded to the South Hills district, looking for a street intersection found to be in the Illinois city.

Needle in Foot 30 Years

Billings, Mont.—An inch and a half of needle was discovered to have caused Mrs. Roy Helm the pain of a "broken arch" for 30 years. She stepped on the needle when a little girl, but did not realize it had penetrated her foot. It was extracted.

Morgan's Repealers Start Second Half With 9 to 5 Victory

Morgan's Repealers, erstwhile West Shore ballplayers, bedecked in new Kelly green uniforms, and the Northern Neckwear opened the second half of the City Baseball League at the Athletic Field Wednesday evening. The Repealers won the game, which was an abbreviated contest, by a score of 9-5. Darkness halted the contest in the fifth inning.

The Repealers got off to a four-run lead in the first inning and never were headed, although the Cravats threatened the lead a couple of times. Charlie Lay, with a home run, and Joey Hoffman with a triple, were the big guns. Each batter drove in four runs.

Jimmy Doyle, making his first start on the mound in the league this season, was the winning pitcher. He was unsteady at times, especially in the last inning when the Cravats nicked him for three runs, but he managed to stave them off and finish.

"Pucker" Davis and Bill Fuchsle shared the pitching for the Cravats. Davis started and was hit hard, yielding six hits and six runs. Fuchsle did a good relief job and would have come out unscathed had Messinger caught a foul ball in the last inning.

It gave Hoffman a life as he poked his triple then with the bases loaded. Williams opened the game with a triple to left field. Hoffman followed with a single to score Williams and Knight was hit by a pitched ball. Lay fashioned his homer at this time to chase Hoffman and Knight home and give the Repealers a 4-0 advantage.

In the third inning the Repealers increased their lead by adding two more markers. Knight tripled and Lay and Wojcik hit singles to score the runs.

The Cravats scored twice in their half of the third on walks to Messinger and Feldmesser, a double by Turk and an infield error.

Both teams registered three times in the fifth. Walks to Leski and Williams, a single by Wojcik and Hoffman's triple accounted for the Repealers' run. The Cravats' runs came as a result of a walk to Kreppel and singles by Turk, Feldmesser and C. Krom.

Marchioness Won Hambletonian Race
Gosben, N. Y., Aug. 13 (AP).—Will Cato spent 27 years in Russia driving the greatest of European trotters to victory but he returned to America to receive his greatest thrill.

Cato, now 49 years in the sulky, got his biggest kick yesterday when he piloted Mrs. Ralph Keeler's The Marchioness to victory in the richest of all harness racing stakes—the Hambletonian. Invader was second and Hollywood Dennis third.

The 55-year-old Auburn driver boasts of one of the greatest winning records in history. He has scored with 14 horses of the former Czar of Russia, but in his own words: "There was no victory as thrilling as winning the Hambletonian before a home crowd of 25,000 howling fans."

Tagging Major League Bases

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)
It is hard to imagine a pennant race any warmer than that in the National League, where the last place team is only 15 games behind the first and three teams are battling for the lead within a space of 2½ games.

But there are various signs and portents that it will become even more heated before the season ends.

Despite a record of 15 defeats in their last 17 games, the Pittsburgh Pirates were only two games behind the league-leading Chicago Cubs today with the charging Brooklyn Dodgers another half game back.

And Pittsburgh was threatening to stage a comeback any moment while danger signals were flying for Chicago.

It took just about everything the Cubs had yesterday to turn back the Boston Braves, now holders of sixth place. The teams waged the longest battle of the major league campaign—19 innings—before the Cubs finally won out, 3 to 2. Bud Tinnings and Fred Frankhouse waged the major part of the struggle and the latter finally lost out when a single, a hit batsman and an international pass denoued the corners and young Frank Denoued connected with one of the first offerings of Hub Pruett, successor to Frankhouse, for a long fly that brought in Bill Herman with the winning run.

Although Brooklyn closed the gap between second and third to a half game with a 4-2 victory over Pittsburgh, the Bucs showed plenty of fight. A three run rally off Bill Swift in the eighth won the game, but Pittsburgh came back as it was quelled and drove Freddy Heimach to cover. Van Mungo checked the threat with the bases full.

In the third National League game, Bill Terry, of the New York Giants, clouted a homer, two doubles and a single while Jim Mooney was holding Cincinnati to four hits and the Giants won easily, 8 to 0. Rain halted the Phillies and Cardinals.

Perhaps to emphasize the difference between the American League chase and the National, the New York Yankees, leaders of the junior circuit, won their tenth straight game, defeating Detroit 8-3 on a strong combination of steady pitching by George Pigras and effective hitting by Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig. The Babe made three hits, including his 34th homer, while Lou batted in three runners.

The triumph increased the Yanks' lead to 11½ games as the Philadelphia Athletics regained second place from Cleveland with an 11 to 0 triumph over the Indians. Lefty Grove's four-hit hurling brought him his 13th victory and his fourth shutout.

Washington, in fourth place but far out of the picture, turned back the Chicago White Sox, 4 to 2, with a seventh inning rally that netted three runs off Ted Lyons. A six-hit mound performance by Paul Andrews and three blows by Dale Alexander and Smead Jolley netted the Boston Red Sox a 7 to 3 triumph over the St. Louis Browns in the remaining contest.

The Veteran Vance

SPORT SLANTS

By Alan J. Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

Just when my dispatches from the National League front indicated the Pittsburgh Pirates were rolling along to gain a commanding lead and break up the race, the Bucs seem to have come a severe cropper, especially at the hands of Burt Shotton's rude Phillies.

The mystery therefore remains unsolved as to which aggregation will be flung against Joe McCarthy's Yankees in the world series.

It won't be the Cardinals, which means the war correspondents will be able to reduce traveling expenses in keeping with the spirit of 1932. It won't be the McGrawless Giants, either, or the Cincinnati Reds, but it may still be the Pirates, the Cubs or even the Phillies.

I can picture nothing more interesting than a battle between the flogging Phils and the larruping Yanks, with the right-field stands to shoot at in the Bronx and that right-field wall to use as a target at Baker Bowl, Philadelphia.

In such a slugfest Klein and Hurst might well be counted on to do just about as much long range damage as Ruth and Gehrig.

Inspiration.
Give some credit to youthful fire and inspiration when it comes to accounting for the extraordinary performances that have marked the track and field events at Olympic Stadium.

There are no better examples than the two Japanese boys, Shuichi Nishida and Chuhui Nambu, nimble sons of a country that is fighting gallantly for its place in the athletic sun.

Nishida was the only pole vaulter with a chance to break up the American monopoly.

He had never done better than 13 feet 7 inches at home, a mark at which most American stars begin to take off their shirts and get down to serious work. Unwaved, however, Nishida kept pace at the Olympic bar went up, to 13 feet 9, then 13-11 and finally, 14 feet.

Alone he fought it out with Bill Miller after Graber and Jefferson, the other two Americans, failed, and Miller had to break the world record, clearing 14 feet, 1½ inches, to shake off the Japanese boy.

Nambu, after failing to win the broad jump, for which he holds the world record, came back two days later to capture the hop, step and jump with a world record performance.

His captain and the 1928 Olympic champion, Mikko Oda, was too severely handicapped by a leg injury to qualify.

When a Swede cleared over 50 feet, it was strictly up to Nambu, and you have never seen such frantic waving of the sunflag as there was after the Japanese came tearing along in a tremendous final effort to negotiate 51 feet, 7 inches.

Watch Japan.
Finland has had its fling. Germany will build mightily for the 1936 Olympics in Berlin, but watch the Japanese from now on, especially if they bid successfully for the 1940 games.

Favorites Fall in Casino Tennis Meet
Newport, R. I., Aug. 13 (AP).—The favorites continued to fall by the wayside as the Newport Casino tennis tournament reached the quarter-final stage today.

In yesterday's play Henry W. "Bunny" Austin, England's premier player, bowed to Gregory Mangin of Newark, N. J.; George Lott of Chicago, America's second ranking player, was beaten by the unranked Jack Tibball of Los Angeles; Calif.; Ted Avery of England and Frank Shields, U. S. Davis Cup star, were defeated by Wilmer Allison of Austin, Tex., and Jiro Satoh of Japan respectively; and Frank Parker of Milwaukee, the 16-year-old national junior champion, gave way to Dave Jones of New York.

Jones' defeat of Parker in straight sets credited the New Yorker with his second upset in two days. Tuesday Jones took the measure of Sidney Wood, American Internationalist. Lott carried Tibball to five sets before going down to defeat.

The quarter-final singles draw today found Allison opposing Satoh, Tibball opposing Mangin, Elsworth Vines of Pasadena, Calif., opposing John Van Ryn of Philadelphia and Jones opposing Fred J. Perry of England.

Weather Observations
The idea of charting weather observations was suggested by the German physicist, Brandes, in 1820. The first synoptic weather chart was produced by Prof. Elias Loomis of Yale college in 1830 and represented the weather of eastern United States on February 16, 1842. The term "forecast" was first used in reference to the prediction of weather by Admiral Robert Fitz Roy of England at the time when the meteorological department began the general issue of weather predictions, in August, 1861.

Strong and Hancock Win Way to Finals In Tennis Tourney

All Kingston Final in Newburgh Tennis Tourney Between Strong-Hancock and Herzog-Rose—Kingston Displays Strength.

Another Kingston doubles team made its way into the final round of the Newburgh tennis tournament last night, when Ed Strong and Stan Hancock of Kingston won a straight set, impressive victory over their highly touted Newburgh opponents of Schoonmaker and Bennett by the scores of 6-4, 7-5. Although the Newburgh team was a slight favorite to win, the type of tennis displayed by the Kingston combination was unbeatable.

From the beginning of the tournament, Strong and Hancock played careless tennis, but last night for the first time these two players found themselves and hit out with an aggressive display of stroking that kept Schoonmaker and Bennett on the defensive the greater part of the match. Strong, whose service and overhead game had been especially weak in the early rounds of the tourney, forced his game to a peak last night, and his service point after point for his team, Hancock, whose game is somewhat softer than his partner's, contented himself with carefully played placement shots that found the corners for a large number of scoring points.

In both sets, the Newburgh team started out in whirlwind style, running up a big lead only to lose it each time when Strong and Hancock began applying the pressure. This was especially true in the last set, when Schoonmaker and Bennett were leading five games to two. At this point of the match, the Kingston team seemed to be losing its touch completely, but a rally that carried them through for five straight games brought them the set and match, when it looked as if a third set seemed probable.

Schoonmaker proved to be the bright star of the losing team. Time after time, he got his racket on the ball when the point seemed lost, and his overhead game sent savage, scorching placements into his opponents' court for numerous well earned points. Bennett performed brilliantly in the closing stages of the contest when he returned several almost ungettable shots to keep his team in the running.

The well deserved win of the Kingston team last night makes the play off an all Kingston final, for Rose and Herzog of Kingston won their way into the last bracket Saturday afternoon with a three set victory over Argenio and Rosenbaum of Newburgh. The finals, which will be played off in the near future, promise to bring out the best tennis in the tournament, for all four players will be at the top of their game when they take the court to play for the championship.

Regardless of the outcome of this match, the doubles champions of Newburgh for the coming year will rest upon the heads of two Kingston players.

Weather Observations
The idea of charting weather observations was suggested by the German physicist, Brandes, in 1820. The first synoptic weather chart was produced by Prof. Elias Loomis of Yale college in 1830 and represented the weather of eastern United States on February 16, 1842. The term "forecast" was first used in reference to the prediction of weather by Admiral Robert Fitz Roy of England at the time when the meteorological department began the general issue of weather predictions, in August, 1861.

New York's Best In Legion Main Bout

Eddie Sexton, who recently won the A. A. U. championship in New York City, will be the opponent of Johnny Raymond in the feature six-round bout on the American Legion night card to be presented Monday night. This is one of the biggest attractions the Legion has presented yet, and it is expected that the crowd will respond accordingly.

Sexton is one of the best amateurs in the metropolitan district and it is said that he will step in the professional ring shortly. Leading men in the fight game believe Sexton to be one of the outstanding figures for the night fans to see and talk about in the future.

At the same time Johnny Raymond is going big guns. He has come back after a long layoff, better than ever. Raymond showed his added power by putting Jack Willis of Poughkeepsie to the canvas. With both boys practically at their best the Raymond-Sexton battle will be one long remembered by the fans.

In the semifinal of six rounds Willie Houck of Kingston will meet Freddie Martin. Then there is the real grudge battle between Buddy Emmerson and Sammy Popp of Poughkeepsie. These boys have met twice before. One match ended in a draw and the other was awarded to Emmerson on a decision, so this battle will hold real fireworks.

Then there is Chet Dawe, one of Kingston's newest and most promising fighters, in a four rounder with Pete Williams of Kingston. This fight drew many fans last time and enjoyed seeing Dawe wallop his opponent although it was called a draw and his second yelled, "we were robbed." Wonder what will happen this time?

The rest of the card is as follows:
Kid Dispencia vs. Sally Stearns
Brooklyn, 4 rounds.
Max Kohler, Kingston, vs. Izzy Bender, Brooklyn, 4 rounds.
Charlie Smith, Hurley, vs. Mickey Raymond, Kingston, 4 rounds.

Mermen to Compete At Williams Lakes

The Williams Lakes Swimming Club at Binnewater will make its debut as an amateur swimming organization next Sunday at 3 p. m. in a program of aquatic events, which members will conduct in cooperation with the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States.

The feature event of the day will be the 500 yard free style swim for men. In this event the New York Athletic Club, holder of the National A. A. U. swimming team championship, has entered its most reliable merman who has not been taken away by the Olympics. He is Edward Lee, former American National 10 mile champion. Mr. Lee in 1930 also won the premier of American swims, the President's Cup Race over a 3 1/2 mile course in the Potomac near Washington. He is also holder of six Metropolitan A. A. U. titles and records and is a member of N. Y. A. C.'s world's championship relay team. Lee, being a swimmer capable of such distances as above, will prove a sensation over a 500 yard course in which the 500 will take place.

Another outstanding entry who will splash closely behind the N. Y. A. C. merman will be Hyman Kaplan, 15 year old sensation of Trenton, New Jersey. Young Kaplan, weighing only 105 pounds, in the 500 yard event will no doubt give the most amazing demonstration in speed swimming that has ever been seen here. Kaplan is a protege of William Brooks, the Williams Lakes coach, and Mr. Brooks has chosen these games for his competitive debut.

The most interesting event on the program is the 150 yard medley swim, which consists of 50 yards of each stroke—breast, back and free scytle. The outstanding entries in this field are Thomas Pooley, of the Penn. A. C. of Philadelphia, and Charles Diehl, of the Mount Vernon, New York, Swimming Club. This race is expected to be a battle, since both men are nationally ranked in aquatic ability. Pooley is the greatest swimmer that has ever been demonstrated in the Middle Atlantic Association of the A. A. U., of which he holds both the medley and 200 yards breast stroke titles. A broadest stroke Pooley is considered the only threat to the famous Spence Brothers here in the east, and as a free styler he has been clocked close to Weismuller's present world's mark in the 50 yard event.

Charles Diehl, who will no doubt give the Penn. A. C. star a great battle, is really the "Pooley of the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U." He also is versatile, holding both titles and records in every style of swimming. This race is looked upon as the keystone of the day since it will be a sprint in each of the three strokes.

The most entertaining event will be the fancy diving by two New Jersey State Senior A. A. U. Champions, William Gaskill, the 16-foot board titleholder, who is this season specializing from the 10-foot board, will be seen at that height in some 24 dives; while Bernard Koff, who has scored a defeat over Alf Phillips, the Canadian Olympian recently, will be seen from the 21-foot springboard. Both these young men qualified for the Olympic try-outs in their specialties, but did not care to break their schooling to take advantage of the chance.

The only closed event on the program is that closed to young men residents of Ulster county. This is a 100-yard swim and it is hoped that there will be some entries made before Sunday. Any young men interested in entering the above closed Ulster county races can do so with William Brooks, swimming instructor, Williams Lakes, Binnewater.

The Williams Lakes Swimming Club extends an invitation to all

Humble Coney Referred to Twice in Scriptures

Bacon has been so kind as to tell us that "the two c's are a refuge for the wild beast and the lion for the hunter." For the hunter uses the strong digging claws and the sharp teeth and the power of his paws to get at the prey. In fact he is placed among the most defensible creatures of the world, and as such it is referred to in the thirtieth chapter of the Book of Proverbs:

"There be lions which are little and they are exceedingly fierce; and they are people not strong yet their prey they tear in the summer. The cunies are but a few in the land, yet make their homes in the rocks. The coveys have no king yet go forth forth of them by bands. The spider maketh it to dwell her hands, and is in a hole and in a web."

The wisdom of the proverb is shown in the choice of places for a place for its home, where it is usually among a heap, or a lot of trees and loose rocks among which it moves about about which moves very slowly when disturbed, as travelers would try to catch one of them seen first at—Montreal Herald.

Ear Coloring an Index of Health in Children

Experts in child hygiene research advise parents to look at their children's ears for an indication of the general state of their health. The ears, it is revealed, indicate the condition of the child's blood as well as any known adopted test.

Here's the secret, as stated in non-scientific terms by Nell B. Nichols of the Woman's Home Companion: "When the ears are pink, the child has a goodly amount of hemoglobin in his blood. If they are pale and colorless, action is in order. The doctor's opinion must be sought and meals planned with the child's health in mind. This means that the meals will contain an abundance of green leafy vegetables, egg yolk, red meats, the dark meat of poultry and liver. Milk has been considered low in iron, and unfairly so, for the comparatively small amount that it has is in a pure form which is readily used by the body."

Loaves Given Away

Many centuries, centuries old, survive in European countries. One of these is the practice at Kyritz, Germany, of distributing hot rolls on the anniversary of the capture of a notorious robber. The bandit terrorized the countryside at one period of the Middle ages. He and his men would accost any traveler who appeared worth robbing, and at times descend upon towns to carry off booty and hostages. Then they would take to the hills, where their knowledge enabled them to defy pursuers. After slipping away many times he was finally run down and captured. In celebration of the event the lord who ruled that particular section of the country gave away loaves of bread to all his serfs and vassals. The custom never has died out.

A Puzzler

The Manchester (Eng.) Guardian drove its readers to the dictionary with this one:

"The small boys' teacher had asked her pupils for a sentence containing the word 'red'. Amid numerous written replies one stood out above the remainder—"The lady wore a veil on her deuterogamy."

"Deuterogamy?" exclaimed the teacher. "Where did you get that word, Johnny?"

"Crossword puzzle, mum," replied Johnny, glibly.

"But what does it mean?"

"Second marriage, mum."

The teacher turned to the dictionary and found Johnny was correct.

Old Copy of Rubaiyat

The oldest known manuscript of the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam has been discovered in Lucknow, India. It has been lying unnoticed in the possessions of an old family there until it was seen by an art collector of the city. Having been copied in 1423 the manuscript is thirty-seven years older than the Ouseley manuscript in the Bodleian Library, Oxford. In the manuscript are 296 quatrains, of which 47 cannot be traced in any of the old editions of the Rubaiyat. As it was copied by a scholar, there are no errors in the text.

Opening Up Waste Places

Wherever there is oil, wherever there is oil, in any country or region, there will be found the American engineer. He is at home in Asia Minor and in Russia; he will soon enter Mosul, unearthing the treasure in the earth. In his wake rumble American motor trucks, traveling over roads that Caesar's legions trod, or carrying trails hacked out of the jungle.

The fruits of such labors are new supplies of raw materials, mineral wealth, precious stones and property that means new trade for all the demands of civilization.

Wide Range of Diaries

Peppe and Aniel, two of the noted diarists of earlier days, were at opposite extremes in their subject matter. One told of his daily events, the other of his soul-searchings. In Peppe we have a narrative, quaint and to us moderns, often amusing; in Aniel we observe a kind of spiritual phantasmagoria, a mood-tinging of a moralistic vein not always pleasing. But the average diary is quite innocuous in every way, and in consequence not so interesting.

Discussed Russia Before Rotary

Russians are fanatics about the religion of Communism. The Russian answer by saying that other religions teach of a happiness to come after death. Communism is a religion that teaches that there is no heaven or hell, and that they must be fanatics about it in order to live up to their promise.
Russian Humanism
The people of Russia are just as human as we are," continued the speaker. "They all work hard, and take a great pride in showing forth their great power in many new developments in industry. I cannot say that the Russian people are happy. Rather I would say that they are hopeful for a better future. And many things are happening in Russia that seem to prove that all of their hopes may not be in vain. Conditions are improving there all the time, and the laborer is being given more freedom. At one time every workman received the same wage regardless of his ability, but that has been changed. Now the man with talent receives a better salary than the dull. Saving is encouraged, but it does not mean money doesn't mean anything there. In fact the rich are looked upon with disdain. It's what a man or woman can accomplish that really matters."

Woman Finds Lost Gem in Her's Claw

Lake City, Ark.—A diamond that Mrs. John Stoll lost ten years ago was found recently by her in a claw that she was cleaning.
Cleaning into the kitchen's claw, Mrs. Stoll said she found the stone she lost from her engagement ring while feeding chickens in her poultry yard nearly a decade ago.
The gem, about a year old, probably picked up the diamond recently, she said.

HEARTBREAK HOUSE

By FANNIE HURST

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate) (WNU Service)

LADY tourists with Baedekers and misanthropic men with sufficient income to retire and live cheaply in pensions along the river, are given to sentimentally referring to the gambling casino at Monte Carlo as "Heartbreak House."

Well, there can be no doubt that out of this storied mansion of chance armies of men and women have stumbled to tragedy of one sort or another.

The case of Gentleman Dawes was one that stood out, even on the crowded ledgers of the debit stories that checker up the past of the brilliant little principality, which is set like a painted drop-curtain against the incredible foreground of the Mediterranean.

Gentleman Dawes came to Monte Carlo at the age of forty-five, from a town in Colorado where he had amassed a fortune of five hundred thousand dollars in a staple mercantile business. His visit to Monte Carlo was more or less accidental, nothing more than part of a tour along the French Riviera, during his first trip abroad, after his retirement from the business to which he had devoted thirty-five years of his life. It was literally his first vacation, the rather typical case of a self-made American trying to learn how to play.

In Dawes' case this was difficult. Thirty-five years that included his early boyhood of toiling the mark to routine, business responsibility, heavy decisions and the growing burdens of success, had produced a prematurely white, socially timid, and wholly unplayful individual. Shy to a degree that made him appear awkward, delicate as a woman in manner, exhibiting none of those aggressive qualities which had made him a success in business, the middle-aged, well-dressed, easy-spending American, who drifted into Monte Carlo, was just one more unremarkable member of his pleasant tribe.

One week later, however, Gentleman Dawes, as he was dubbed overnight, was not only the talk of the gossiping Riviera, but the American press, with especial emphasis in his home city, carried the ever-tragic and dramatic story of a man who has gambled away a large fortune to the banks of Monte Carlo.

In exactly eight days, Dawes had lost to the green baize tables the sum of four hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars. It was one of those spectacular debacles which happen every so often in the little unreal principality along the sea.

When he walked into the brilliant gaming salons his first night at Monte Carlo, something inside Hermann Dawes which had never before been stirred, caught fire. For the first time in a bachelor life of hard work, lonely leisure, insular pastimes, he tasted the wine pleasures of chemin-de-fer, baccarat, roulette; sniffed the exciting dust of chance, experienced the untellable thrill that catches a man at the pit of the stomach, as he places gold in the lap of fate. Within two hours after his arrival, Hermann Dawes had never gambled in his life, discovered that he was a gambler; Dawes, whose business success was due to his conservatism, and who had never even turned a playing card, found himself on the way to becoming a tragedy of Monte Carlo.

After that, his case went the way of many before him. Broken, broke, dazed by devastation, lacking the impulse and the courage to return home, the next fourteen years of his life were to be spent within the white shadow of the house of his doom.

Monte Carlo has a way of making a bow to these derelicts of fate. She does not cast them off as ruthlessly as the storied legends go. For those fourteen years of his life, every month, out of the coffers of the gambling house, there came to the bowed little gentleman living in a back-street pension of the town of his undoing, an allotment of five hundred francs. Scarcely enough to keep his body and soul together, but an assurance, at least, of his board and keep. Twenty dollars a month, for a man whose fingers had once closed over the reassuring fortune of five hundred thousand dollars. To abet that, he obtained a position as night elevator-operator in one of the large hotels. Automatically then, since no employee in the city of Monte Carlo may play stakes at the gaming tables, this disqualified him for the gaming tables, but, strangely enough, it was as if, after his life lay thus in ruin about him, desire had fled.

For fourteen years, Gentleman Dawes lived his life there, occasionally pointed out as a relic of tragedy. His days passed as stumpy and uneventful as if he had not thumbed his nose to fortune, and seen the results of his lifetime come crashing about him like hailstones. Every morning, hatted, spatted, nicely dressed in gray, quiet as a moth, gentle, still, he walked from his narrow little pension in an obscure, even mean street, to a small adjoining square, where for two francs he took his coffee and petit-pain, which constituted joint breakfast and lunch. During the afternoon Dawes, the once important citizen of the thriving Colorado town, loitered about the beaches, dawdled an hour in the park during the band concert, returned to his pension room for refreshment, dined in a narrow little cafe along the wharf and reported at eight for night duty as elevator man in one of the large hotels.

Grin, grin, a little horrible, was this life of a man who, in eight brief days, had undone his lifetime of carefully achieved success.

Then, in a life that seemed marked for swift rises and falls of destiny, a woman named Angie Falls, a second cousin of his mother's, whom he had met but once, died in Keokuk, Iowa, and left him, as her nearest relative, a fortune of two hundred thousand dollars.

Poor Dawes. It could not be said of him that he took the news unblinkingly. He stuttered, he paled, he broke into thin, womanish tears and manifested a very close equivalent to hysteria. Amazing with what rapidity a galaxy of friends sprang up about the obscure old man! His departure from Monte Carlo for America was the occasion of quite a local celebration. The press of Europe and America took occasion to revive the case. Gentleman Dawes had once more come into his own.

It was just about sixteen months later that a resuscitated Gentleman Dawes, rejuvenated, filled with a new poise and as appealing as ever in the shy, hesitant manner that had always characterized him, returned to the scene of what had been his degradation. Not, however, to Monte Carlo. He was too well known there and to be conspicuous was anathema to Dawes. It was almost as if his flesh literally crept up his bones and his being shuddered. In a pointed goatee, his hair dyed to a sluggish black, he returned to Deauville and the Riviera as James E. Squire, there to recoup and in a way to revenge.

The following week, there was a thin patter of talk along the blue coast. A man named Squire, from the states, had lost, within eight days, playing the tables between Deauville, Nice, and Cannes a neat fortune amounting to no less than two hundred thousand dollars.

No Tame Rooster Match for Ringneck Pheasant
The strongest fighting cock would probably finish a poor second in a bout with a ringneck pheasant.

Equipped with longer spurs than its barnyard relatives, and of a more truculent disposition, the pheasant can worst anything in its class. The farmer's Plymouth Rock or Rhode Island rooster, a lumbering adversary at best, finds itself soundly trounced after a few passes.

When food is scarce in the winter, cock pheasants invade the barnyard for corn thrown to the chickens. Woe to the rooster which endeavors to uphold its prowess against the visitor from the wilds. Roosters have been killed in such unequal combats.

Pheasants, some wild life observers say, have been known to mix it with grouse and prairie chickens with sad results to the latter. They have sometimes been accused of cannibalism. Whatever their faults in their social relations, they cannot be accused of cowardice.

During the nesting season in spring, the male pheasant is often indifferent to the presence of man. It struts boldly about the fields, unconcerned over its visibility. Sometimes it barely deigns to get out of the road when menaced by automobiles. Frequently the indifference to hazards it recognizes during the shooting season is laid to stupidity.

The pheasant's superiority in combat with domestic fowl is partly attributed to its better physical condition. It makes constant use of its wings and legs, and is much harder by nature. Though sometimes outweighed, its faster speed and excellent equipment more than offsets the disadvantage.—Detroit News.

People of Moravia
Frills, lace, and embroidery are much in evidence in the trousseau of the Moravian bride. Moravia is a small principality within the republic of Czechoslovakia. A long time ago it was an independent country, but for many years it has been under the control of one or another of the European powers. Before the World War it was part of Austria. Though it has been dominated by outsiders, its people have preserved their national and racial characteristics. The inhabitants of the little principality, which is a mountainous plateau, are chiefly Moravians and Slovaks.

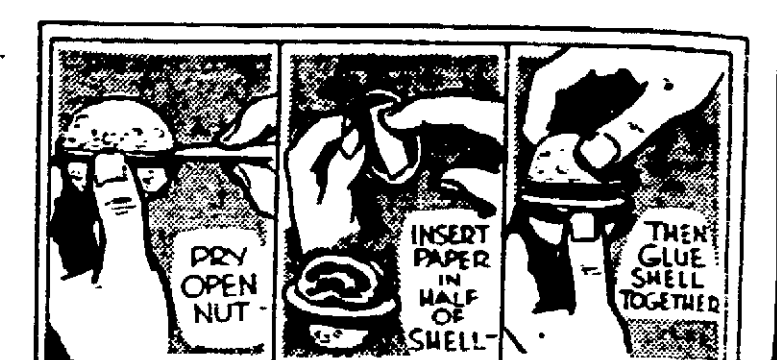

"Heights of Abraham"
The heights of Quebec took their name from Abraham Martin, a Canadian pioneer of Scotch descent. Martin was a pilot on the St. Lawrence river at the time Samuel de Champlain founded the city. Champlain authorized a deed granting Martin a homestead on the heights, and his herds of cattle and sheep were a common sight on the tableland along the St. Lawrence. Martin was affectionately known among the inhabitants as Maitre Abraham.

Modern River "Arks"
While Noah was reputed to be the first builder of an ark more modern types of this style of craft were made by river men, who used them to float coal at a cost of about $5 a ton from the Pennsylvania mines to the Atlantic seaboard. It is said that the "arks" used in transportation of the fuel were so cumbersome that they could not be brought back against the river currents and were therefore sold for what they would bring. These arks held about 60 tons of coal, each.

TRICKS of MAGIC EXPLAINED

HOW TO FIND NAME OF CERTAIN CARD WRITTEN ON PAPER INSIDE A NUT

HOW PAPER IS PLACED INSIDE WALNUT

Before doing this trick get a large walnut and pry it open. Then write the name of a card on a small piece of paper, and insert this inside the shell of the nut, which is glued together again. Mark the nut so that you will be able to identify it later and place it in a bowl with others. Then take the card, the name of which appears on the paper, place it on top of the pack and appeal before your audience. Shuffle the pack, but in doing so keep the chosen card on top. Hand the pack to a person and ask him to take the top card, remember its identity and place it back in the pack. Then announce that you will find the name of the card inside one of the nuts in the bowl. Take the nut with the identification mark, open it, and the trick is done.

WEALTHY MAN PAYS MILLIONS TO WOMEN

Three Divorces Cost Nebraska Man $2,000,000.

Omaha.—A $2,000,000 loss in the matrimonial market has convinced E. John Brandels, Omaha's most famous playboy and the wealthiest young man in Nebraska, that he should discontinue playing with the hearts and hands of women and direct his activities to some other occupation.

Brandels' latest loss is $200,000 and his third wife, the former Claire Blavette of Paris, daughter of the noted surgeon, Dr. Victor Blavette, whose bloodless operations have attracted attention throughout the medical world.

Brandels, who is thirty-seven, fled suit in the Los Angeles courts a few days ago seeking his third divorce. He charged that his present wife had deserted him, that she had an ungovernable temper, often had fits of anger—frequently in the presence of friends—and that of late she took a fancy to embarrass him in the presence of friends by calling him vile names and telling him of many faults.

This latest divorce even the count with three marriages and three divorces besides a pair of alienation suits between divorces and marriages.

These affairs have cost Brandels a little more than $2,000,000 directly and thousands of other dollars which he spent on the fair ladies.

Scotland Yard Snares Car Bandits With Wires
London.—Methods used by Germans during the World War to halt British tank are being used by Scotland Yard against automobile bandits.

The Germans found that wire entanglements could stop the lumbering tanks. That same theory is being tried now on cars.

The latest device, said to be excellent, consists of scores of yards of spiral steel wire compressed into a very small space and held by springs. When the device is thrown into a road the springs release the wire and any automobile entering the trap finds its axle and brake drums snared thoroughly.

In a recent test a car driven across the wire at 60 miles an hour was stopped short within 30 feet.

Lad Dashes Under Train to Save Life of "Rags"
Chicago.—As a train chugged to a stop at a Chicago station commuters saw two youngsters outside, one with a nondescript puppy.

The boys were playing marbles when suddenly the one with the most freckles glanced up and saw his pup beneath the train.

"Rags!" he called. "Come here, Rags!"

The dog paid no attention. The cars began to move forward.

Then, quick as a flash, the youngster was under the train. Commuters gasped then wilted. The boy scrambled out on the opposite side, carrying his puppy triumphantly and safely under one arm.

Say Speed Trap Is Used to Pay High Salaries
Cleveland.—Here's one for a congressional investigating committee: North Randall village, a Cleveland suburb, has only six taxpayers and 110 residents, but manages to pay its mayor $6,000 a year and minor officials an additional $10,000.

Abe Pickus, village business man, charges officials operate a speed trap against unsuspecting motorists in order to defray their salaries. Court is held around the clock for the marshal and his deputies who trap drivers from ambush, Pickus says.

Drifting Buoy Gives Steamer Officers Scare
Boston.—The British steamer Marathon, en route from Trinidad to Montreal, was nosing through the night 300 miles east of Boston when her lookout was startled to hear the wailing of a whistling buoy.

It first was feared the ship had strayed from her course and was perilously near a hidden reef. Investigation revealed, however, that the buoy was on a spree: that it had broken from distant moorings and drifted into the steamship lanes.

Bandits Teach Lesson
Akron, Ohio.—Once Sam Bellish dis-trusted banks, but not now.

Bellish drew his $7,900 savings out of a bank and started home. On the way he had to fight two bandits to save his cash. On his hospital cot he called for an officer and sent the money back to the bank.

Sailor's Holiday
The nautical phrase "700-year Sunday" means Thursday. The afternoon of this day is devoted to the making and mending of clothes, and is practically a holiday, when the ship's company can occupy themselves as they please.
